THE CURRENCY AND THE TARIFF.

Another Speech by Hon. William Clifton, of Chatham.

THE "WAR HORSE" DROPS INTO POETRY.

Captain Howell's Discussion of the Financial System-Merciless Exposure of Republican Methods.

ZEBULON, Ga., October 9.-[Special.]-Captain E. P. Howell and Hon. William Clifton addressed an appreciative audience here this morning. They came down by invitation of Hon. T. J. Barrett, one of the representatives of this county and president of the Farmers' Alliance.

Court is in session, with Judge Boynton on the bench, and prominent lawyers from Griffin, Barnesville and Atlanta in attendance, among them Judge John I. Hall and Judge John D. Stewart, of Griffin, and Mr. Azmon Murphey, of Atlanta.

Captain Howell and Mr. Clifton came over from Barnesville, arriving about 9 o'clock much exhilarated by the two hours' drive in the crisp October air. They rested at the hotel until the noon recess, when the county alliance adjourned and a crowd collected in the courthouse. Mr. Barrett presided and i ntroduced the speakers. He presented Mr. Clifton first, as "the war horse from Chatham," explaining that he was raised on Hunger and Hardship creek, upon a wholesome diet of chitterlings, fatty bread and persimmon beer. Mr. Barrett said that Mr. Clifton was a remarkable man, and that although he had gone from the country to Savannah, the people of that great city had always delighted to honor him. "To know Mr. Clifton," he said, "is to love him. He belongs to the people. He is liberal in his views, he is upright and correct in his conduct, and last, but not least, he is right square upon the Ocala platform." Mr. Clifton's Remarks. Mr. Clifton spoke briefly, but luminously. He had been told of the attractions of Pike county, but when he came he felt like Mr. Harris, of Catoosa, did when he went to Sa-DVERTISERS at the Pi vannah to the deep water conference. "What > with more water?" said he when he had seen 'So my friends and fellow countrymen. said Mr. Clifton, "I am inclined to ask wha on earth you want with more than you have in Pike county. In the language of my friend

Mr. Clifton then briefly discussed the na tional banking system, pledging his sympa-thy to the people in their efforts to remove the in the financial system. inequalities in the financial system. He said that he was loyal to his constituents in Chatham and would remain so, but that did not prevent him from doing whatever might be in his power to help his country friends in their efforts to get relief from in-

Mr. Clifton said no attention used to be paid to the farmers in arranging the affairs of the county, but now it was different. In this connection he quoted the following verses which he said he had found in a paper:

We can all of us remember, How along about September, The paper uster to tell of the caucus and the fair;
And you feilers from the city
Uster get almighty witty
On the feller with the duster
Who had hayseed in his hair.

They had fun in legislaturs
With the man who raised potaters,
If, by any hook or crook or chance
Elected and sent there;
And those repotorial friskers
Uster comment on the whiskers,
And the carpet sack of Barrett,
Who had hayseed in his hair.

Yes, by gum, he rode his pass out, An' he uster blow the gas out, Oh, the man cut up ridicklus Who had hayseed in his hair.

But, by gum, if you've been readin', You've observed a stranger sot, by gam. It you've been reading four've observed a strange proceed!

'Tis the feller with chin whiskers
That is surely getting there;
and it won't be too surprisin'
If, by slowly organizin',
Old parties will wake up
To find the hayseed in their hair.

When the fashions change, you fellers Will all carry green umbrellers, And trousers wide across the seat To make the dudelets stare; And in those days, if you pass muster, You must wear a linen duster; And if you want to throw on style, Just scatter hayseed in your hair.

Captain Howell Introduced Mr. Barrett, in introducing Captain Howell, said among other things:

and among other things:

I am very glad that we have the co-operation and support of THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION. I am satisfied it is with the people and it is a power in the land. A few days ago Captain Howell carried me through THE CONSTITUTION building, and he told me that he had 160,000 subscribers to THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION, and about 140,000 of them were farmers. "Well," said I, "then c ap-tain that certainly means that this is our paper." He said, "It is your paper; your cause is our cause; your fight is our fight, and we are for the people."

Now take into consideration the 160,000 guns that go off once a week for the demands you , and that we all know are right, what execution that paper can do for us! How much can that paper accomplish for us? They can't get out of it. We have got them branded; they are ours. When they go astray we will call them to account. I don't think they want to. They are in this fight with us for this reform. The motto is equal rights to all and special privileges to none. That right has been denied to the farmers of this country. You can't get around that. You have not had a fair chance; you have not had an equal chance with men in other vocations of life. I will ain you longer; our time is short at best. It affords me a great deal of pleasure to introduc my distinguished friend, Captain E. P. Howell, of Captain Howell began by telling how he came to be here in a time of dead calm. He and Mr. Barrett had been to Darien on a delightful visit as the guests of Mr. Clifton. In an unguarded moment, he and Mr. Clifton had accepted an invitation to come here, and they were here to be come here. they were here to keep that promise. With that he launched at once into a discussion of the evils of the financial system of the United Men tell you that everything is all right. We are getting along well enough, except for one or two things. You can hear it in the aewspapers, and on the streets. You can't get along in politics by doing one or two things. That will do in religion, but not in politics. There are only a few things a man is commanded to do in religion to make him happy—as Sam Jones says, quit your meanness and go and do better. But when you tackle polities a man can't change in a minute; he can't quit his meanness; he will keep it up in one way or another. I don't say every democrat will do to forlow, I don't say every republican is a bad man and won't do to follow, but I say, within the next five years—nay, within the next year, you are to determine questions that will be fall of good or evil for all classes of people. Therefore, I say the questions to be voted upon by you, there political questions, ought to receive your undivided attention. You ought to hear discussions upon these questions. You people can tell what is right and wrong; God Almighty made men so they can tell which is right and wrong; but it is for you to hear the arguments so you can convince your neighbors."

"I have lived a long time under the motto.

Here Captain Howell took issue with a famous maxim.

"I have lived a long time under the motto, 'Live and let live,' and I am going to take issue with it today. I don't believe in that. The duty of a man toward his brother is to live and help live. Let us go on that doctrine and see if we don't get along better."

Here Captain Howell illustrated the inequality of the financial system by telling of two brothers to whom their father gave $5,000 ench, and started them out. "One of them became a farmer and the other went to the city and became a broker. At the end of ten years the broker vi-ited his country brother, and drove a sam worth more than a! the stock on his brother's farm. Why is the? The farmer wanted to borrow $1,100, and fa ling to get it in Zebulon, went to Atlanta where he applied to the banks for a loan and was refused, the national banks being probibited by law from lending on land; mally he secured a loan by giving a mortgage. to the banks for a loan and was refused, the national banks being probibited by law from lending on land; that from lending on land; the first secured a loan by giving a mortgage on land of three times the value and paying 15 per cent interest. No wonder he got poorer every year. The broker, on the contrary, when he saw a stock that he knew would advanced a few months, and desired to buy $5,000 worth of it, could put up that stock and borrow $4,000 on it at 6, 7 or 8 per cent. In a few months, after the stock had advanced, he sold it, paid back the money and put several thousand dollars in his pocket. Now they won't lend money to you on your land. They say it isn't convertible, but the man who made the loan at 15 per cent found it very convertible. You let them get a found it very convertible. You let them get a mortgage on your land and see if they don't convert it when you fail to pay. It can be con-verted in an instant by the sheriff's hammer; the only difference is that they must go through the forms of law with land, and they put the stock in their pockets and tell you our margin is up.

"Now, this farmer wants to know why he "Now, this farmer wants to know why he can't borrow $5,000 just like the broker. It reminds me very much of the man who went into a store to get some cheese and crackers and a drink of whisky. He had no money, but he told the man to wrap up the cheese and crackers, and then went back to the rear of the store, where they kept the whisky. When the whisky was poured out he drank it and walked off, leaving the cheese and crackers on the counter. The storekeeper told him he hadn't paid for it. 'I gave you the cheese and crackers for it,' said he.
"But you didn't pay for the cheese and crackers.'

crackers. "I didn't get the cheese and crackers."
"Well, said the storekeeper, 'that may be all right, but I don't understand it.' That's the way with you. [Laughter.]

"I'll tell you what's at the bottom of this," "I'll tell you what's at the bottom of this," continued Captain Howell. In 1862, when the United States government was in the depths of despondency, they got together and wanted to provide a way to raise money. The bankers of New York went to the secretary of the treasury and said to him: 'If you let us frame a banking law, we will let the United States government have all the money it States government have all the United States government have all the money it wants. The bankers of New York, Beston and Philadelphia got together and framed the law we have got today. They made this national banking act, and we have been working under it ever since the war ended. It was framed by the bankers for the purpose of doing just exactly what I told you is possible to do today. They framed it so you cannot get money, and so the banking interest can get money at 5 per cent down to 2 per cent. What was the result? It furnished all the money they wanted. In the first place the government through the instrumentality of these bankers said, 'We will now take charge of all the circulation of the country.' They put a tax of 10 per cent on any kind of circulation except such as they authorized to be issued. No corporation or authorized to be 'issued. No corporation or community could issue it without paying 10 per cent tax every time it went over the counter. The next thing was, 'You shall not lend money longer than ninety days,' and in the third place, 'You shall not take land as collateral security. We have been working under that law since 1862. Every time they made a change they made it worse than it was in 1862. These are facts pobody controverts. worse than it was in 1802. These are lacus bobody controverts.
"The bankers said: 'Let us take the bonds of "The bankers said: Let us take the bonds of your government. You pay interest on these bonds and give us the right to control this circulation that you made and we will issue money.' There never has been one single thing said about increasing the volume of the currency, if you will let the bankers do as they want to. If will let the bankers do as they want to. If you propose to issue treasury notes, they say you want to flood the country with fla money. I am not attacking the bankers. I don't blame them If I had money to buy bonds I would do as they do. I am like the Irishman's wife. He went home pretty full and she began to shake him. 'Why, Bridget,' said he, 'what are you shaking me for?' 'It's not you I am shaking,' said Bridget, 'it's the And it's the ways of the bankers that I am shaking out of them. It is their right to make the circulating medium—something every man, woman and child wants a piece of. Is there any monopoly bigger than that? Yet you will find in Atlanta a man who will say that's right—that it makes the currency uniform. What good does a uniform currency do you if you can't get any of it?

"Do you know that every dollar in circula-tion, gold or silver, passes through the treas-ury of the United States every year? If you have $5 it has been there within the past twelve months, or it will be there within the twelve months, or it will be there within the next year. They have got the law fixed so it will have to go there. This last congress appropriated a billion dollars. Judge Bleckley says he don't believe there ever was a million dollars in the world, but that congress appropriated a billion. It is so big I don't know how to tell you what it is. We have only a billion and a haif of dollars in circulation and that is two thirds governments. circulation and that is two-thirds gone—six hundred millions a year to pay all appropriations tipy made. They can't pay it out till it goes into the treasury. They collect $400,-000,000 a year from you people by the internal revenue charges. Every dollar of it comes out of the people of this county and other counties like it. Some of that money has got to go back there twice. That's the reason why it has to go there twice. Money has been tight with me ever since I came back from the war. If you ask a man what's the matter he tells you it's want of confidence. It is not the man who has no money who is burt by it. If I have no confidence in a thing, and I have none of that thing, it don't hurt me. Who is it that circulation and that is two-thirds gone-siz no considence in a thing, and I have none of that thing, it don't hurt me. Who is it that has lost confidence? It is the man who has the money. Whenever you hear a man saying, 'It is want of confidence,' he is holding his money to make more some other way. I hear it said every day, 'Oh the democrats ought not to make but one issue and that is the tariff issue.' Well, now the tariff is as egregious a blunder as ever was put upon our people. 'It is his other issue. Well, now the tariff is as sgregious a blunder as ever was put upon our people. When you sit down to your table you think you can count the number of people you are supporting, but you are mistaken. It is an iniquitous scheme to make the rich man richer and the poor man poorer. The people who have manufacturing establishments are making money on it. If you sit down to breakfast

A YOUNG GIRL SLAIN.

Her Four Male Cousins Shoot Her Down in Cold Blood.

THEY GO TO HER FATHER'S HOME And Send a Bullet Into the Young

Girl's Heart BECAUSE SHE DEFENDED HER FATHER.

A Neighborhood Feud Results in an Assault, and Then in a Case of Murder.

FORSYTH, Ga., October 9.-[Special.] Miss Lizzie Gossett, a beautiful young girl of seventeen, was shot to death about dark last night by her four male cousins, while in defense of her father's life. The young lady was one of the most popular in the neighborhood where she lived, and it is said was engaged to marry one of the young men who aided in murdering her.

The Provocation for the Tragedy. The tragedy occurred near Unionville, welve miles from Forsyth. Mr. J. C. Gossett, the father of the dered girl, is a large planter. On an adjoining farm lives his brother-inlaw, Edward Thomas, who has four sons. He has had trouble for time with the some time with the Thomas boys, of whom there are four, J. R., David, Boner and Jake.

Since about the 1st of September the stock of the Thomases has been running loose, and very greatly injuring Gossett's crop. The Thomas boys themselves would race through Gossett's corn and cotton like wild men, regardless of the great damage they were doing.

The Crisis Comes.

It seems that Gossett took up two of their mules some time ago, but allowed the Thomases to take them away without paying anything for the damage done. He again took up another mule that was foraging in his crop, and this time said that the Thomas boys should get the mule unless they had paid fifty cents for the damage the last mule had done, and fifty cents each for the two mules before which he had allowed them to take away without paying damages.

They Assault Their Uncle. The Thomases swore that they would have the mule if they had to wade through blood to get him. In this mood they went over to Gossett's yesterday evening about dark and demanded the mule. Gosse named the conditions as above stated upon which they could get it. This they again refused, and repeating their threat, without more ado, all four jumped on Gossett and began to beat him.

Shot Through the Heart.

Just about this time Miss Lizzie, who had een out horseback riding, came up in canter. Seeing the four men beating her father, and not recognizing them in the dusk, she sprang from her horse and, grasping one of the men by the collar, gave him such a jerk as to throw him upon his back. The flash of several pistols followed from the men and the girl fell with the ex-"Oh, cousin David!"

It Was David's Bullet.

It was the bullet of her cousin David which had pierced her heart. The murderers fled at once from the scene, leaving the father and mother alone with their dead child. The news spread rapidly, and during the night hundreds of people gathered at the Gossett home to see the dead body of the girl who had died in defense of her father.

Coroner Britt has taken charge of the body, and the inquest is now being held. Other Stories Told of the Murder.

GRIFFIN, Ga., October 9.-[Special.]-The two Thomas boys, aged about eighteen and twenty years, nephews of J. C. Gossett, went to Gossett's house on yesterday evening to get some stock that Gossett had in his lot ing to them. A fuss ensued as to the amount of damage done by the stock to Gossett's crop, during which the Thomases had Gossett down beating him when his daughter went to his as sistance, and attempted to pull John Thomas off her father, which so enraged him that he picked up a double-barreled shotgun he had carried there, and shot Miss Gossett in the left breast, killing her instantly What One of the Brothers Says.

Another story current and reported as con ing from one of the Thomas brothers, is that he saw the young lady come out of the house, and shot her, under the impression it was her father. The young man said his brother said he was so mad he did not take time to think what he was doing. An Uncle Speaks.

Another and the latest report was told by Officer James Gossett, who is an uncle of the slain lady. He says Dave Thomas did the shooting. The evidence before the coroner's jury was substantially as follows: Three of Mrs. Thomas's mules got into J. C. Gossett's plantation, and he put them in his lot and sent his nephews word to come after then and pay the damages. Three of the boys came, John and Dave bringing their pistols. They went into the field where the girls were holding the mules, and demanded them, but the girls asked for the money to pay damages. The boys refused to pay, and attempted to run the mules over the girls in order to get them loose from them. The children's father came out, when John Thomas and he got into a scuffle.

The Fatal Shot. The young lady, Miss Lizzie, went to her father's rescue, when Thomas grabbed a gun belonging to Mr. Gosset, which was sitting against the house, and shot her just above the region of the heart. The young lady stag-"Oh, Lordy, papa, he has killed me with No Arrests so Far as Known.

THE YOUNG "LORD" IS MISERLY. And Does Not Want to Pay Too High for the Privilege of Skipping. ROME, Ga., October 9.-[Special.]-It seem like an eternal battle in the "lord" case. There was another skirmish in the superior court this afternoon, and it was a right good wrestle, but the state of Georgia come out on top, and England's subject still lingers behind the It came about in this way: On Tuesday last the "Sidney Lascelles, alias Walter S. Beresford" cases were postponed for a few days at the defendant's instance. Sheriff ore carried the prisoner back to jail, but said he could get out if he would give $3,000 bond. That is $1,000 in each case. The "lord" thought this was too high, so a motion was made before Judge Maddox to reduce the bail. Leading Counsel Dean, for the defense, read the motion. They cited that in the larceny after trust case, where Beresford bor d the young lady's ring, that there was nothing in it; that the indictment was defec tive, and that the ring had been returned, and asked that he be released, to appear on his own recognizance. On the other they relied on the constitution of Georgia that excessive ball should not be required.

The solicitor general insisted that as to the correctness of the first indictment, this was not a proper time to make the point; that as to the other cases, let the judge investigate. "Mr. Sheriff, what amount have you fixed?" asked Judge Maddox.
"Three thousand dollars, your honor; that is, $1,000 on each case," replied Sheriff Jake "Then I do not think the amount excess-

"But, your honor," said Mr. Dean, "we insist that under the circumstances of this case it is too much. Here are three indictments growing out of one transaction-I mean two and there is nothing in the ring case." "It has been held, your honor," quickly re-torted the solicitor, "that three cases might arise from all the transactions, but we insist the bails are not excessive."

"A judge is just like other folks, and of course he hears things. Now, as I understand these cases, the defendant obtained $1,000 from Mr. Hamilton, and is indicted for forgery, cheating and swindling, and larceny after trust. There is no need for further argument. Your motion is overruled. I will ot interfere," said the judge.

By some it is thought the "lord" will give the required bail, but yet he remains in the old jail and his wife spends much of her time around there with him, as usual.

THEY ALL RESIGN.

A Wholesale Throwing Up of Development Officials.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., October 9.—[Special.]—The management of the Middlesborough Town Company and of all the allied companies operating in this development, have, in a body, tendered to the shareholders in London, the resignation of the positions held by them in each of the companies. FLORENCE, Ala., October 9 .- [Special.]-Shelby Coley, the murderer of his brother-inlaw, Wayne Blackburn, near Florence, severa weeks ago, was brought here this morning by Thomas Flippo, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., who captured Co.ey near Hickman, Ky., yesterday. The particulars of the capture are very exciting. Flippo located his man in the swamps on the Mississippi, twenty-five miles from Hickman. He surprised and captured him at night, and having no conveyance or horse, walked twenty-five miles with his prisoner to the nearest railroad station. Coley is an illicit distiller and a desperate character. He murdered Blackburn in cold blood and defied capture. Flippo will receive $500 reward for capturing him.

Court convened a little early this morning at half-past 8 o'clock. Notwithstanding the early hour, the courtroom was packed Standing room could scarcely be had. The attorneys on both sides were fresh, and eemed anxious for the fray, and it was not long in coming.

The first witness placed upon the stand was Mr. T. N. Shurley, administrator of Captain McGrath's estate. His testimony was as follows:

The Tell-Tale Letters "On the 13th day of June I took from the safe of McGrath a package of letters. recognize these as the letters which I ook from his safe. I also recognize the picture, which I also took from the safe, as that of Mrs. Howell."

E. A. Fries-I recognize the handwriting in the letters as that of Mrs. Ashley Howell. I corresponded with her for a long time and would recognize her writing.

The Letters Read. Here the state's counsel read the letters. They were about twenty in number. About fifteen were written before her marriage, and the others after she became Howell's wife. They abounded in the vilest language. Those written before her marriage eferred to the places of their clandestine neetings. Throughout these letters are frequent requests for money, shoes, tobacco, cigars, whisky, etc. They also tell of her great love for him. Those written after her marriage abounded in love as those written before. More than this they call for money, and ask that he send her a package of cigars, etc., from Camak. She also recited plans for meeting McGrath at the Markham or at Decatur, and spending the day with him. She also recited the fact that her husband had caught on to her correspondence with him, and gave the name of a fictitious party to whom he must address his letters in the future. She also called her husband "a d-n s-n of a b-h," and wished that he could be killed and gotten out of their way. Other Evidence Rendered.

Edmund Shurley swore that on the evening before the killing he had a talk with Howell. He said he hated McGrath worse than he hated hell, and that he would kill him on the slightest provoca-

On cross questioning he admitted having heard McGrath and Howell curse each other frequently.

T. B. Micker swore that on the evening of Howell's marriage he asked Howell if he had heard the report about the woman he was about to wed. Howell replied in the affirmative, but said he believed them all to be lies.

The Prisoner Broken Down

This brought the court to the time of adjourning. At 1:30 o'clock order was rapped for, and the detendant made the following statement in rebuttal of what had been testified to during the morning:

"Gentlemen of the Jury-I have listened to the reading of these letters with great surprise and mortification. It is the first I have known of them. They show on their face that they were kept secret from me. It requires much evidence to make a man doubt his wife. These letters seem to be in the handwriting of my wife. I am wholly decieved in her. I seem now abandoned by her. There was nothing in her treatment of me while we were in Atlanta, or while I was courting her, to make me doubt her love and fidelity to me. She was always loving to me, and considerate always. My wife was not only affectionate to me before I left Atlanta for Warrenton, but after I came here, and had slain Captain Mc-Grath, as I thought, in defense of her honor and to protect her purity and my home, she continued the deception. She visited me at the jail in Augusta several times, as often as she could. She was Always affectionate and loving. When I started from the jail to the courthouse to stand my trial she was with me. She kissed me goodby at the door of the stairway and wished me well. As the evidence was of such a character that she did not wish to hear it, she did not come up here then. She came in with me yesterday with my sisters, and acted the part of a noble wife. As such I believed her to be. It seems she has deceived me. I loved Julia more than I loved my life. I acted, gentlemen, in good faith, when I sought to protect her. I am now abandoned, even by my wife, and I ask this jury to show me the mercy that is due to one who has acted in good faith, but who has been wilfully deceived and injured more than it is possible to injure a man.

"As to Mr. Tip Cody's statement, gentlemen, I deny all of it. I had no such conversation with Mr. Cody. Mr. Cody has no use for me; does not speak to me; and once, when I sought to protect myself from an assault made upon me by his brother Ed, he hunted me on the street with a gun. As Mr. Cody is known to the jury, I did not deem it necessary to impeach his evidence. Gentlemen, whether you convict me or not, I am already injured almost to hopelessness. My heart is overcome and my sorrow complete."

Argument Begins. The state and the defense both closed with this, and the speech-making commenced.

Colonel W. P. Davis, of Monticello, made the opening speech for the defense. He made a grand and eloquent appeal for his client, dissecting the law and applying it to the Solicitor Bill Howard followed in one of his able and forcible arguments. His arraignment of the prisoner was the most scathing ever listened to.

The most notable speech of the day was that of Tom Hunt, of Sparta. His speech was about an hour and a half long, and abounded in flights, of eloquence. His argument was convincing and had its weight with the jury.

The leading attorney for the defense, Colonel E. P. Davis, of the local bar, tore in shreds the character of the unfaithful wife of his client. He appealed to the jury, not for mercy to his client, but for justice. His speech was forcible and weighty. It was the effort of his life.

The state's counsel, the Hon. Hal Lewis, of criminal law fame, commenced his argument at 9 o'clock tonight, and at the hour of adjournment, 10 o'clock p. m., he was still speaking, and speculation is rife as to the result his argument will have on the jury.

The Judge's Impartiality.

Judge McWhorter is making for himself quite an enviable reputation as a presiding officer. His rulings are delivered without favor, and are said by legal experts to be in accord with the law.

Howell's fate is a matter of doubt. His friends readily say that he will be acquitted, while the opposite side claims a viction.

Talks to The Constitution. After the adjournment of court your correspondent sought an interview with the

"Will you live with your wife if acquitted?" was the question asked. To this Howell would not reply, preferring to wait until the case was deci-

However, from the speech of Colonel Davis for the defense, the inference is given that he will not. Colonel Davis, in his argument, said that instead of Howell being tried for murder, it should be the base, polluted wife of him who sought to protect her; that she, and not Howell, was the real murderer. He further said that so far as the defense and the defendant were concerned she could go wherever she wished Mrs. Howell's future is blighted past redemption, and God only knows what will become of her. The families of both the prisoner and his wife have the sympathy of our people. THE STORY OF ESSIE WIGGENS.

Who Was Tolled Into a Life of Shame by

Her Mother.
Thomasville, Ga., October 9.—[Special.] Essie Wiggens, who was shot in a Macon bagnio Wednesday night, has had a peculiar, sad and eventful life. She is the victim of a cruel mother's influence over a daughter. Essie was born in Marianna, Fla. She came of a family who were born to rule. Her ancestors had held high offices from governor of Florida down. They were the wealthiest and best people at that time in the state. The family is noted for its beautiful women and gallant men, but the serpent entered, and, like Eve, she was tempted and fell.

The Mother Fell.

Mrs. Townsey Wiggens, the mother of Essie, took the first fatal step. The course down was a rapid one. Her husband bore as long or longer than most men would. Then came the separation. For some reason the mother retained possession of her daughters, of which Essie is the eldest. They were then very young. What their life has been since is due to the mother's influence. What She Might Have Been Under other circumstances all would have been different. She, like all the rest of the women of the family, is very handsome. For a long time Essie, her mother and sister were inmates of a house of ill-fame in Jacksonville.

When the fever broke out, they went to Maon. All the old citizens of Marianna, many of whom are her relatives, will remembe Essie Wiggens, and will be sorry to learn of the tragedy in which she plays so prominent a to count the people you support you must count the manufacturers you pay tariff tax to support. On the very plate you eat upon you pay 47 per cent to help somebody who could buy you forty times. For the knife and fork you pay  $4i\frac{1}{2}$  per cent more than it costs; so it is with your clothes when you put them on in the morning. It is an evil which ought to be remedied, but we are not to believe that if we can reform one thing everything else is all right. In religion all a man thing else is all right. In religion all a man has got to do is to quit his meanness and that covers a multitude of sins. Here is Brother England; suppose a great sinner is brought up, a man wno is a blasphemer, a drunkard and a thief, and suppose Brother England should tell him that he would be saved if he quit blaspheming. What would you think of Brother England? He would tell him, as Sam Jones would say, to quit his meanness; not a part of it, but all of it. If you remedy this tariff question and leave the rest you this tariff question and leave the rest you would have about 473 per cent saved and the

Captain Howell then took up the cotton and followed it from the Pike county farmer to

You work hard all the year to make a bale of cotton, and get $40 for it. It goes to New England and Europe, and is brought back here right to Zebulon. Turning it into calico and muslin did not cost half the money and a third of the time you have spent on it, and the New Englander gets $300 a bale for that cotton. They are getting richer every year and you are getting poorer. That is being done right here beforefyour eyes; and every time you see a bale of cotton leave this depot, ask yourselves what is being done with it. It has gone to people who have money invested in large manufactories to work it and bring it here to "These yankees will say: 'Why don't you people build manufactories?' That is a pretiy question. We are making ourselves poor raissing cotton. The lawyers tell me practice is so small they haven't any money to put into cotton factories. [Laughter.] You send a committee east to borrow money to build a factory, and those people will tell you: 'We think you centlemen are mistaken. Your climate is not gentlemen are mistaken. Your climate is not suited to it. You had better let us make the suited to it. You had better let us make the cloth and you make the cotton. If you insist on making cloth they will finally agree to let you have money at 15 per cent. They have tried factories on that plan in Georgia and they were closed out by the sheriff in two years. Little Rhode Island has $317,000,000 more than you have in Georgia. They take cotton, manufacture it and sell it back to you at $300 a bale. Have you seen the time since the war when the people of this county could raise money to start a cotton fac-tory here? You may live twenty-five years longer under this system, and you will have less money to start a factory. How many of you know of people in your neighborhood who are worse off than they were ten years ago? I am sorry to see it, but it is so.

"I don't want you to understand that the government ought to provide money for every-body who wants it, and take care of his family. I don't believe in dispensing money like God does air and water. It is worth something to get it. It ought to be fixed so that every man who wants it and is entitled to that every man who wants it and is entired, to credit can get it at a reasonable rate of interest. There is no reason on earth why one class of people should be charged 15 per cent and another 5. I will promise you farmers that everything I can do to overturn a sysand another 5. I will promise you farmers that everything I can do to overturn a system that is so unequal and unjust I will do to the utmost of my ability. When you do fix it that way you will hear people say-land is not good security for money and that it is not convertible." Here Captain Howell brought in the point about convertibility of land when a creditor has a mortgage and the debtor fails to pay, and he added that land was the foundation of the government. "We can get along without anything but the land and the preachers. You could get along without editors, but I would hate to see you do it. [Laughter.] You could get along without lawyers, doctor, bankers or merchants, but I would hate to see you do it. But you can't get along without lam."

Captain Howell took up the free coinage of silver, saying there was a difference between the price of gold and silver dollars from 1792 down to 1873, except in 1860, when, owing to the gold discoveries in California in 1848, the price of silver went up, and the silver dollar was worth, a menium.

the gold discoveries in California in 1848, the price of silver went up, and the silver dollar was worth a premium. He said demonetization put the price down to 70 cents on the dollar and partial remonetization sent it back to $1.20. Free coinage would send it back to $1.20, where it was until the demonetization was brought about in this way: England was using a gold standard and wanted to bring the world to it because of the immense advantage, she would get in trading way: England was using a gold standard and wanted to bring the world to it because of the immense advantage she would get in trading with her dependencies which used silver. Englishmen saw that America had immense amounts of bonds to sell, and they resolved to force this country to make bonds payable in gold. They refused to buy them unless they were payable in gold, and the American bonds were made and sold that way. Then the eastern men were afraid that if we coined silver we would have no gold to pay bonds with. So they demonetized silver. That enabled Englishmen to buy bulion for 70 cents on the dollar. They then carried it into rupees and got a dollar's worth of wheat or cotton for it in India and Egypt. In that way they were able to lay down Indian and Egyptian wheat and cotton at an advantage of 16 per cent over the farmers of the south and west.

Captain Howell called attention to the fact that America produces 90 per cent of the silver of the world.

that America produces 90 per cent of the silver of the world, and only 40 per cent of the gold, and yet the United States is helping England to depreciate silver, one of the greatest American products, and as a consequence to depreciate the prices of other American products like wheat and cotton.

He made an interesting remork about any American products like wheat and cotton.

He made an interesting remark about call loans. A New York banker had told him he had $2,000,000 loaned out on call. Call loans, he said, could only be used by two classes of people, speculators and faro banks. One gambling and the other a business of the same kind, but legalized. Call money will be demanded as soon as the banker can get a higher rate of interest. In New York last year at one time it brought 189 per cent. A farmer who borrowed money on call would be likely to have it called before he got his crop planted. No man but a fool would borrow money on call for a legitimate business. A speculator can use it because he can buy tocks with it, and if it is called the next day stocks with it, and if it is called the next day he can sell out and pay up. They get money that way usually at 3 or 4 per cent, while the farmer who borrows on his land pays 15. The speculators make on the cotton crop every year as much as the farmers do. It was to remedy this state of things that he wanted to see the financial system changed.

The courthouse was packed and the farmers listened attentively to the speaker. As he warmed up they warmed with him and manifested their interest and approbation by frequent ejaculations, such as "That's so," and "You are correct."

The Fythian Relief Board,-The representa tives of the various Knights of Pythias lodges met on Thursday evening to formulate plans for a much needed Pythian relief board. It was decided to have the board consist of two members of each lodge, one of whom must be a past chancellor. The officers are to be president, vice president, ecretary and treasurer. They are to be elected annually and serve from January 1st to December 31st. A report of the transactions of the board must be presented to each lodge every six months. The matter now goes to the four lodges for confirmation and the establishment of the board is

TWAS A LOVE FEAST.

The Second Day of the Methodist Ecumenical Council.

A MOVEMENT FOR ORGANIC UNION.

Several Addresses and Great Enthusiasm.

BRITISH DELEGATES FAVOR UNION.

The Day Occupied in Discussing the Question of the Union of Methodism. Pleasing Incidents of Debate.

WASHINGTON, October 9 .- The third day's session of the Ecumenical Methodist council opened with Rev. H. T. Marshall, of the Methodist New Connection, England, occupying the presiding officer's chair. The usual devotional services were held. The hymn, "How Blest the Tie That Binds," was sung by the assembly. Rev. James LeHaray, of England, read some passages from the scriptures, and prayer was offered by Rev. George Packen, of Halifax.

The minutes were then read, and some time was spent in the discussion of a technical dis-regard by secretaries of the injunction laid pon them yesterday to refrain from mentioning titles in reading.

The appeared to be a difference of opinion between the delegates on the propriety of omitting these titles, but finally it was decided that the title "Rev." might be used.

Business Committee's Report The minutes were then approved, and the usiness committee reported as follows: Greetings from the Evangelical Lutheran nod of Maryland; memorial on Methodist deral relations; resolution on opium traffic; emorial on the social question; memorial m the Local Preachers' Association of the ethodist Episcopal church; motion to hold special love feast or fellowship meeting tion to appoint a committee on statistics of Various motions and communications were eived and laid over without present actio The business committee also reported the following list of presiding officers for the suceeding days of the session: Bishop H. W. Warren, Methodist Episcopal church of Colo-Warren, Methodist Episcopal church of Colorado, for the second session of the third day; Bishop J. W. Hood, A frican Methodist Episcopal Zion church of Fayetteville, N. C., for he first session of the fifth day; Rev. M T. yers, United Methodist Free church of Engand, on the second session of the fifth day; Bishop R. K. Hargrove, Methodist Episcopal church, south, first session of the sixth day; Rev. Dr. D. J. Waller, secretary of Wesleyan Methodist conference, London, second session of the sixth day.

The topic of the morning session, "Christian Unity," was then taken up, and an essay was delivered by Rev. T. G. Seiby, of the Wesleyan Methodist church, Greenock, Scotland.

British Delegates Willing.

British Delegates Willing. Among those who further discussed the subt were Rev. Dr. A. S. Hunt, of the Methoist Episcopal church, New York; Rev. homas G. Mitchell, of the Primitive Metho ist church of Hull, England; Rev. Dr. William Nichols, of Dublin, representing the rish Methodist church; Rev. Dr. Ralph Abercrombie, of the United Methodist Free church of England; Rev. Dr. William Arthur, of London; Rev. W. P. Lark, of the Bible Christian church, Isle of Wight, England; Rev. J. Swann Whittington, of the United Methodist Free church, Bristol, England, and others.

Rev. C. F. Reid, of Florence, Ky., representing the Methodist Episcopal church, south, told of the birth of the Methodist union of China. He said there were six different branches of the Methodist church operating in Chinese missions, crossing each other and working without connection. That should be changed. These branches should come to changed. These branches should come to-gether; they should have a common name, a common hymnal and a common advocate. They wanted one Sunday school literature; they wanted one great Methodist university in China.

Rev. Dr. E. E. Hoss, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, from Nashville, Cenn., said that the size of the Methodist hurch in this country made the question of union one of tremendous importance. He had room in his heart for all Methodists, but had room in his heart for all Methodists, but not in his house. The worst movement in the direction of unity came when the church said "Division is wrong; come and join us." The church lias no right, because of size and numbers, to dictate. It attained no particular privilege on that score. Each church, perhaps his own, had erred, and the only way to attain unity would be for them to stop their nonsense and to acknowledge each other's rights. If unity was to be secured, there must first come an rainfornia, reading the scriptures and delivering a prayer.

After recess Bishop Warren, of Colorado, took the chair and called the council to order. Devotional services were held, Dr. Jewell, of balifornia, reading the scriptures and delivering a prayer.

Rev. Dr. Coke Smith, of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, Nashville, Tenn., read the first paper of the afternoon session. His subject was "Christian Co-operation." His paper and its subject occupied the attention of the council during the remainder of the day's session.

There Was Much Enthusiasm.

When the debate concluded a hymn was ung and the council was about to adjourn when a noteworthy scene occurred. All day the talk had been of unity and co-operation, and the stirring words of the speakers had gradually wrought up the council to a state approaching enthusiasm. The train had been gradually wrought up the council to a state approaching enthusiasm. The train had been laid and the match was applied when the presiding officer, apologizing for a breach in the regular order, said that the words let fall by Dr. Stephenson had taken root, and therefore he asked indulgence for President Myers, of the English Methodist Free church, who delated to say a few words in response to Dr. Stephenson's remarks. His object, for a long time, he said, had been to bring the British Methodist churches together. All his people were willing and anxious, and he was instructed by his fellow churchmen here to say that they responded to the efforts of unity. Rev. Dr. Marshall, of the English Methodist New Connection, said his heart was too full for utterance. As one of the presidents of the minor Methodist bodies he reached out his hand to Dr. Stephenson, for he had struck the keynote to which all Methodists responded. He clapsed hands with Dr. Stephenson and felt that Methodist unity would follow. Rev. T. Worthington, president of the English Independent Methodist conference, said he represented the democracy and could not commit his people. But they favored organic union. There would be some difficulty in details, but in spirit they favored unity. If they could not reach organic union they sould, at least, attain federation. [Cries of "hear, hear!"]

Rev. F. W. Bourne, president of the English Bible Christian church heartily enderged

hand.

Rev. Thomas Bromage, president of the English Wesleyan Reformed Union, also welmed Dr. Stephenson's suggestion of a conferce of English Methodists to secure unity, as d Alderman William McNeil, of the English rimitive Methodists.

rimitive Methodists.

Their delegates from time to time sought ecognition, but the presiding officer, not wishing to interrupt the tenders of co-operation and aity, refused to recognize any one except the idents of English branches of the church, ach of these arose and welcomed the invious to come together the council, appreng the 3rst important result that had followed its deliberations, cheered and encouraged the speakers and when Rev. Dr. Embry, of Kansas, a colored delegate, added to the feeling by announcing that a circular had been issued looking to a conference to seek common ground upon which to unite all of the African Methodist churches, there was a momentary silence followed by a spontaneous outburst into the words of the doxology; "Praise God from Whom all blessings flow."

The session adjourned amid mutual handshaking and congratulation.

TYPE-SETTING MACHINE CONTEST.

An Exhibition in the Presence of Newspaper Publishers.

CHICAGO, October 9.—A special committee of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, consisting of Celonel Frederick Driscoll, of The St. Paul Pioneer Press; E. H. Woods, of the The Boston Herald, and Major W. J. Richards, of The Indianapolis News, will conduct a type-setting machine contest during the coming week in The Chicago Evening Post building. The machines which will compete are Mergenthaler Linotype, Rogers Typograph, McMillan type-setting machine and the St. John Typobar. Commencing Monday, October 12th, the test will continue privately for six days, and for one week thereafter, commencing Monday October 19th, the machines will be on exhibition to the public and newspaper men generally.

Great Interest Taken.

Newspaper proprietors and publishers in all parts of the country manifest great interest in this contest, the first of the kind ever held, and it is expected that a large number of publishers will take advantage of the opportunity to see the various machines at work together, and make a comparison as to their relative and make a comparison as to their relative merits.

To assist them in their work the committee will have with them the foremen of their composing rooms, and the capacity of the machines for superseding the work of setting type by hand will be thoroughly investigated.

At the same time there will be exhibited also a new method of stereotyping, known as the cold stereotyping process, whereby places are made with a rapidity never before attained and without heating the type. are made with a land that tained and without heating the type.

It is probable that other mechanical appliances of interest to newspaper men will also

LYNCHING IN OMAHA. A Negro Hanged by a Mob-Exciting Scenes

OMAHA, Neb., October 9 .- Lizzie Yates, the ive-year-old victim of a lustful assault by a negro named Joe Coe, died today.

About 10 o'clock tonight the negro was taken from jail by a mob and hanged. They did not get at him easily. They were obliged to batter down the doors of the jail with sledge hammers, and street railway cars were used as battering rams.

While this was being done the telephone wires had been cut, and there was no communication with the jail.

Wished No Speech-Making. Ex-Governor Boyd pushed his way through the crowd to the jail door, and he essayed to speak to the crowd.

"It will be a disgrace to Omaha," he commenced. "I implore you to be quiet and de-sist from your unlawful efforts. Let the law take its due course. Let —" His words were cut off by a man with a

His words were cut on by a siledge, who said:

"You are not governor here. Get out! Go attend to your opera house."

While all of this was going on, Omaha's police force of ninety men was gathered, but concentration was impossible. The officers were lost in the crowd were lost in the crowd. Somejone suggested that the fire department be called out and the hose turned on. The firemen came and laid their hose and the crowd simply carried away the lines and drove the firemen away. They were after the negro, and they got him.

SHOT DEAD THROUGH THE DOOR.

A Bloody Assassination Reported from Nashville. NASHVILLE, Tenn., October 9 .- [Special.]-

A stable at Westside park was the scene of an assassination about 9 o'clock tonight. At that hour W. F. Milliron, a twenty-year-old stable boy, employed by J. M. Brown & Co., was, with several other boys, in the act of retiring, when he heard some one call him outside. "That's Bill Amacher," said Milliron. I'll see what he wants," and opened the door.

see what he wants," and opened the door.

Instantly there was a flash from a revolver, and Milliron feel to the floor a corpse. A bullet from a 38-caliber revolver had entered his eye and passed through the base of his brain, severing a main artery in its flight.

The man who did the shooting was William Amacher, the horseman, whom Milliron had considered one of his best friends. They had never had any trouble, but Amacher was drunk, and is said to have remarked today that Milliron was the cause of his wife leaving him several days ago. Amacher ran around the

FROST WAS REPORTED,

And It Gave the Cotton Futures Market a Good Start.

NEW YORK, October 9.—Sun's cotton article says: Futures opened buoyantly, presently declined, closing easy at about last night's prices. clined, closing easy at about last night's prices. The United States signal service gave this morning confirmation of killing frosts. Wednesday night as far south as Shreveport, Aberdeen and Selma, and our market had a buoyant opening in the face of a lower Liverpool, but prices did not get so high as on Wednesday, and weakness soon overtook the whole market. It was declared by the bears that the recent dry weather would greatly mitigate the damage by frosts, and the movement of crops seemed to bring into derision all short crop prospects. The accumulation of streks to about 850,000 bales at the ports and interior towns makes the buils timid. Weather at the south was generally reported clear and bright, just what is needed to secure the crop in first-class condition. Spot cotton was dull and nominal.

The river now lacks but five inches of being as low as it has ever been in the memory of the oldest river men. Navigation is practically abandoned, and with no immediate prospects of relief. The captain of the "Pinhook," which arrived from the mouth of the Ocoee this morning, says the boat grounded several times on the trip down? The gauge at Mussel shoals marked only fifteen inches of water.

Funeral Sunday. Dublin, October 9.-Kenny, Harrington, Richard Power and Dalton paid a visit to Grashevin today and selected a site for Parnell's grave. It is situated upon an enclose mound to the left of the mortuary chape and is in a most attractive posi-tion. The grave will be dug in the center of the mound and when a monument is erected over it, will be conspicuous from all parts of the cemetery. The mound is at present filled with graves of the poor of the neighborhood who were buried there many years ago, but has not been used for burial purposes for some forty years.

Thousands of persons are already flocking to Dublin to attend the funeral, and an immense crowd is expected to be present Sunday. All public business houses will be closed while the funeral ceremonies are in progress.

One of the chief charms of the reception was its cordial informality. Everyhody was welcomed in a way that made them feel it, and from the beginning the reception was conducted just as every one chose do it.

Delightful music was rendered during the evening.

Refreshments, consisting of the most dainty cakes, ices and coffee, were served at the pleasure of the guests in what is known as the large hall. There the guests were made to feel the rare ability of the Ladies Auxiliary for spiendid entertaining. This was also the occasion of welcoming the new physical instructor, Dr. J. C. Ellson, and his bride to Atlanta. They were married in Richmond, Va., last Wednesday.

After luncheon, a member of the gymnasium class rapp d the guests to order in the reception room, announcing that Governor Northen, who was present, would deliver a wedding present to Dr. and Mrs. Ellson. With appropriate words he delivered a very landsome bronze clock—a gift from the gymnasium class.

Governor Northen took occasion to say he hoped that the interest in him and his work would always prompt him to be on time with duty. Dr. Ellson in response thanked the members for their interest in him, as shown by their handsome testimonial, saying that he hoped that the same interest and harmony which had alw ys existed between them would continue. Governor Northen interposed:

"Between who—your wife and yourself?"
Mr. Ellison explained with stammers and blushes.

The Litigation Bill Killed. The Georgia senate yesterday justified its historic record as a conservator of legislation. It postponed indefinitely the senate substitute for the Berner bill and all pending amendments, and the matter is dead so far as this legislature is concerned.

We congratulate not only the senate but the whole state on this result.

This action of the senate will bring feeling of great relief to thousands of citizens of Georgia whose small fortunes are invested in stocks and bonds which depend for the payment of the interest and dividends due thereon upon the Central railroad. It was well understood that this legislation was chiefly aimed at that road-and it was well known that if successful it would have shaken its credit and brought financial distress. This would have made every stock and bond guaranteed by the Central fail of its dividend and interest no matter if the lease of the subordinate property was not attacked, and the senate is to be congratulated on restoring confidence by defeating this legislation.

It is the fitting end of a radical and an injudicious attempt to divide the powers of the railroad commission with the courts and to give a damaging and an unnecessary twist to the policy of the

Those who are familiar with the debates in the constitutional convention of 1877, and with the course of legislation on the subject of railroad control, need not be told what that policy is. In the discussion that preceded legislation THE Constitution bore a conspicuous part. Among the daily newspapers of the state it stood practically alone in insisting on the right of state control and in advocating the exercise of that right. In all the propositions that were made at that time in the legislature and out of it, there were none that seriously contemplated dragging the railroads into the courts, there to be harassed by endless litigation. Such a proposition was indeed hinted at, but it was never seriously discussed. It was regarded as wildly impracticable.

What the state did was to practically take the corporations out of the courts. It established a board of commission, con ferred on it a part of the people's sovereign power, and gave it jurisdiction over the railreads. The wisdom of this course has been amply justified-so much so, indeed, that even the railroads, which were bitterly opposed to the commission, have come to look on its operations as in no degree inimical to their best interests. In short, the railroad commission is the essence of simplicity and wisdom, and its power reaches a great deal further than those who are agitating for extreme legislation seem to suppose.

THE CONSTITUTION has insisted during this discussion that the commission already has ample power to prevent any combination of railroads, no master how powerful, from injuring the people of the state. The minority report of the senate committee illuminates this point, and is practically conclusive. The minority show how and where this power is given, and they conclude that it is ample.

The position of THE CONSTITUTION cannot be misunderstood. The railroads must, be subject to state control at every point where the interests of the people are concerned, but it is the policy of the state that this control shall be exercised by a commission established for that very

Its authority is now practically plenary, but if it needs strengthening, any suggestion to that end will meet the hearty approval of THE CONSTITUTION, should such a condition of affairs arise to war-

Strengthen it at every point where it may be weak; but keep the railroads out of the courts, where they can be kept dangling and dancing for years to the ruln of their stocks and the vested interests of the people. Let us carry out the policy of the state, repudiating every mischievous measure that would weaken or cripple that policy.

The history of the effort to pass extreme bill of this character at this session is interesting. First Mr. Berner introduced a bill which had as its ultimate result the forfeiture of the charters of the railroads. This feature was next dropped and the railroads were to be involved in endless litigation and locked up in the courts while their values decreased. Then those who Were unwilling to go this far offered a conservative measure which was not accepted by those who would take nothing that was not extreme, The conservative measure, which differed from the extreme measure in vesting in the commission the full power to regulate rates, and to protect the people by equalizing rates when demanded by discrimination, and also to investigate leases and enforce their compliance with the constitution, was defeated.

In this manner the senate received the house bill and it is but a just comment to say that the failure to pass any bill is due to the extreme efforts of those who were unwilling to be reasonable and conservative.

The Bright Side in Figures. Suppose Mr. Ingalis and a few others of his kidney, tell us that the country is going to the devil. Suppose they present their array of statistics. It is all right. There are figures on the other side, better figures, and they are backed up by the census bureau. A census bulletin shows that whereas in 1880 we had one pauper to each 758 of population, we have now only one to each 857. This is not only a distinct advance, but a big

Then it should be recollected that pauper sm now is very different from what it used to be. The St. Louis Christian Advocate

In commenting on the figures contained in the bulletin, a Connecticut newspaper gives a curious picture of the costs of pauperism as illustrated in Hartford. Drunkards are admitted to the almshouse, nursed with whisky and milk until the cone of their systems is restored, furnished with ew clothing, set at work for awhile, and then allowed to take their departure. After enjoying their liberty and pawning their clothes, they re turn and repeat the round. One of the worst of these cases was that of an old soldler who enjoyed pension of $24 a month. Another who received only a pittance of $8 a month from the government, although able to work, succeeded in obtain ing in one year from the tender-hearted author ties of Hartford, five coats, nine pairs of trouser seventeen undershirts, as many shirts and pairs of drawers, ten pairs of shoes and two of boots, and nany other articles of clothing. When the poor receive such treatment it is plain enough that nobody is going to starve in this republic. If they are able to work they will earn their living. If they won't work they will tramp over the country, and if they deserve assistance they will be well taken care of.

All the facts, whether in or out of the census reports, go to show that this is a land of plenty, full of good people who will look after the unfortunate

Worth Makes the Man Everywhere.

The death of Mr. Parnell should not cause as to overlook the almost simultaneous death of William Henry Smith, the first lord of the treasury, and leader of his party in the house of commons.

We have an idea in this country that poor man in England has no chance of rising, and in fact it is frequently said that such a man has no chance of rising in this republic under existing conditions.

The career of Mr. Smith shows that thi is all a mistake. He started life as a news boy. Then he became a news man. He learned how to organize, distribute, and rule over separate organizations in the line of his business. The reading of the newspapers made him a well-informed man. He accu mulated money, became prominent, and at the proper time entered parliament as the leader of his party. Such was his ability that his followers admitted that he had never disappointed their expectations.

Now, there is a lesson in such a life too plain to be mistaken. If William Henry Smith in a country of royalty, aristocracy and caste could begin life as a newsboy, and work his way up to the position of first lord of the treasury, there is absolutely no limit in any land to the progress of any human being.

Coming back to our own country, for example. After reading this brief summary of Smith's career in England it will take very faint heart-a weak spirit indeed-to say that the conditions of today prevent the poorest and most obscure man from rising

It is true that we have plutocrats, and a good many of them. But that is mere moonshine. There is still a chance for boy to start at the bottom of the ladder, and if he shows that he is bright, brave and true, nothing can keep him down. His more favored competitors will stand aside, and be among the loudest of his admirers in proclaiming his excellence.

Worth makes the man today, just as yesterday, in the new world, as in the old.

Baby Cleveland as a Harmonizer. Baby Cleveland's mission has already begun, although she is hardly old enough yet o look at the light without winking and blinking, as babies have a way of doing. As a matter of fact, Baby Cleveland's mission begun before she was two days old. Didn't her distinguished papa, who was in the habit of standing on his dignity on all occasions, even the most social, astonish a political gathering the day after she was born by appearing before it wreathed in smiles and glowing with happiness? And didn't he drop into a vein of genial humor in his remarks about Baby Cleveland, and cause his hearers to open their eyes with astonishment and their mouths with laughter? He was, in fact, a new man, happier, broader minded, and apparently in love with his fellow men.

But Baby Cleveland has even a more important mission than this. Last Thursday night her papa presided at the democratic ratification meeting at Cooper Union, and made a speech. Governor David Bennett Hill was present at the meeting, and also made a speech. There was, in fact, a democratic love-feast. Everybody who looked at the smiling ex-president thought of the dimpled, brown-eyed little baby, and the ex-president, not to be outdone in thinking, thought of the dimpled, brown-eyed little baby every time he looked at anybody. It had been said that there was some sort of rivalry between Mr. Cleveland and Governor Hill. The newspapers had dwelt on this supposition, and it was said that there was considerable coolness between the two distinguished democratic leaders. All this, it should be remembered, was before there was any Baby Cleveland, and this fact probably accounts for the rumors. When there was no Baby Cleveland, why shouldn't Mr. Cleveland give or be given the cold shoulder?

But all this is changed now because it was the mission of Baby Cleveland to change it. After the speeches and the hurrah at the Cooper Union the other night, Mr. Cleveland and Governor Hill met and solemnly shook hands, and asked after each other' health. Then the governor asked about the baby's health and a strange thing happened. Mr. Cleveland was standing with his back to the entrance. Instead of replying to the governor's inquiries about the baby, Mr. Cleveland raised his hand and pointed back over his shoulder with his humb. At this the governor nodded energetically, and the two locked arms and started for the door. A policeman, was watching, made haste to clear a way through the crowd for them. He probably thought they were going out to get a clove or a cinnamon bud, as men do at the

But it was not so. The two distinguished democrats entered Mr. Cleveland's carriage and were driven to his home. We all know what happened there. Baby Cleveland was brought out and the governor made a great to-do over her beauty and her cute little dimples. Being a bachelor, of course Governer Hill was not allowed to hold the baby, but he was permitted the inestimable privilege of tickling her rose-bud of a mouth with his rough democratic mous-

Now, then, the question arises-and we put it fairly and squarely—if there were any coolness between these two distinguished democrats, do you suppose Governor Hill would have been allowed to look at Baby Cleveland, dimples and all? Indeed, do you suppose that Governor Hill would have gone out of his way to look at Baby Cleveand, no matter how pretty she is or how dimnled?

This is why we say that Baby Cleveland's mission is one of peace and harmony.

Harmony in New York. The reunion of the New York democracy at Cooper Union Thursday night, of which our dispatches yesterday gave an interesting summary, is an event that is sure to have a momentous influence, not only on the campaign in New York, but on the campaigns that are now going on in other states. There is no longer any democratic faction in New York worthy of the name. party has got together, rivalries have been bliterated and harmony reigns supreme. It has been intimated by those who were anxious to have it so, that Cleveland was not pleased by the outcome of the democratic convention, and that Governor Hill would not give the ticket a cordial support.

But all doubts have been dispelled. These distinguished democratic leaders were present at the Cooper Union ratification meeting and their speeches, both characteristic and enthusiastic, were the chief features of the occasion.

Mr. Cleveland presided at the meeting, and his hearty endorsement of the democracy of Tammany, and his appeal for harnony and unity in behalf of the success of the ticket, were in the nature of withering re bukes to the hypocritical mugwump element which proposes to endorse Plattism simply because Tammany hall is the headquarters of the old-fashioned, genuine and unterrified democracy. Mr. Cleveland's speech, vigorous, dignified and patriotic, will undoubtedly have a wholesome effect upon the situation in New York.

The speech of Governor Hill was a vicon ous arraignment of republican misrule, 'aggressive and scathing, and created great enthusiasm. Both speakers insisted that there was a larger issue involved in the New York campaign than a local victory for the democratic party. Both pointed out that the defeat of the republican party in New York would give encouragement to the party of the people throughout the country; whereas, democratic defeat in the pivotal state would go far toward assuring anothe four years of the party which is responsible for high tariff taxation and which anxious to fasten on the democratic south the infamous force bill.

The Cooper Union meeting gives assurance of democratic yietory.

Exporting Cotton Goods.

According to the last number of Bradstreet's, our shipments of cotton goods to Brazil have been greatly increased in the past few months.

Our overstocked market has forced manu facturers to look elsewhere for consumers. and it is said that mills which never before made cotton goods for the export trade are now seeking a foreign market for their pro-

The Spanish-American countries south of us consume annually over one hundred million dollars' worth of these goods, and among them all Mexico is the only country which has cotton mills of any size with improved machinery. To supply her ninety-seven cotton mills Mexico has to import cotton from the United States. But she can do little to accommodate the growing trade of Brazil, whose imports show a disposition to constantly increase.

The cultivation of cotton is very limited in Uruguay and in the Argentine Republic while neither country contains a cotton fac tory of any importance. Paraguay is better off. Something like our sea island cotton grows spontaneously in her soil, but its cultivation has fallen to a very small output In the other South American countries scarcely any cotton is produced, and all de pend upon the United States and Europe for the manufactured article.

We manufacture better goods than any produced in Europe, and under the reciproc ity treaty our exports should show a greater increase in the future than they have in the past. Already England is alarmed, and is considering the expediency of transferring will be better able to hold her own by being on the ground? If reciprocity is worth anything, the mill owners of the eastern and southern states should get together and inaugurate an aggressive policy. They would find it greatly to their advantage to hold a convention-say in Atlanta-this winter, and determine upon a plan of action looking to the export to the countries south of us of a larger percentage of their output.

In this age trade cannot afford to be inac tive. While we remain idly speculating upon the probable results of reciprocity in the future, England will move her plants to South America, and bar us out from the markets which by natural laws and favor able treaties should be ours. If our mil men propose to lead the world in the line of cotton goods they cannot afford to sleep over the opportunity now presented.

Grand Juries and Preachers. The recent action of a Georgia grand jury in summoning before it two evangelists who had made positive charges in their sermons to the effect that the law was violated to considerable extent in the community has provoked not a little comment.

But the grand jury did the right thing. When a preacher stands up in public and place he should not be allowed to go his way unquestioned. He should be summoned before the grand inquest of the county and called upon to tell what he knows. If he derives his information from hearsay he should be asked to give the names of his informants, and then they in turn should be summoned. This is strictly in the interests of justice. and it is the best way to vindicate a town when it has been slandered—the best way to catch and punish evil-doers when truth has been told.

Not only the preachers but the newspaper men and other persons who from time to time make statements alleging that crime is committed with impunity should be called before the grand jury, and given an opportunity to purify public morals by setting the machinery of the law in motion. It is an encouraging sign of the times to see our grand juries so active. They have a great work to perform, and their vigilance, fearlessness and thoroughness will do more than any other one thing to strengthen the reign of law and order.

The average preacher does not like to go into the courthouse, but if he knows any thing that will benefit the public when it is told in the grand jury room he should go there and give in his testimony. He is not discharging his whole duty when he simply retails his information from the pulpit, and contents himself with denouncing a community or certain classes in it. Let him state the facts at the proper time and place.

THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT thinks that fraud is bound to win in New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Iowa and Ohio. Let us hope LEASES ILLEGAL.

Some of Them Are, So Says the Special Committee on Railroad Leases.

THE REPORT TO BE MADE TODAY

It Says the Leases of the Central and Macon and Northern Are Contrary to the Constitution.

The joint committee of the two house appointed to inquire into the legality of the leases of the various Georgia roads reported yesterday.

The committee was composed of Senators Callaway and Ellington and Representatives Berner, Huff and Twitty.

The report was drawn by Senator Calla way and Mr. Berner, and is signed by all the members of the committee except Mr. Mr. Huff claims that he was not shown the report until yesterday morning, and was called upon to sign it at once. He had not time to study it thoroughly, and, therefore, refused to attach his signature for the present. The report is a document of some four thousand words, making about fifteen pages of typewritten copy. The substance of it, as given by Mr.

Berner, in brief is as follows: "The lease of the Southwestern by the Central is declared good.

The lease of the Augusta and Savannah by the Central is declared good. "The lease of the Eatonton railroad by the Central is likewise declared good.

"The Georgia railroad had the right to lease itself and, while there is some doubt as to the Central's right to own one-half of said lease, still the committee thought there might be enough in the charter to

"The lease of the Macon and Northern by the Richmond and Danville and the Central is contrary to the constitution as a matter of law, but the committee does not undertake to state whether as a matter of fact competition has been lessened or defeated.

"The lease of the Central to the Geor gia Pacific, the committee thinks, is also contrary to the constitution as a matter of "The committee is also of the opinion that the Central, under its charter, did not have the right to lease itself to the Georgia Pacific."

The committee thinks, however, that the Central could have leased the Georgia The next question now is what will the two houses of the general assembly do with the report? Will they adopt it or reject it? It will undoubtedly cause a lively discussion in both houses, and the vote will be The opinion of many well-informed members expressed last night was that the senate would almost certainly disagree to it, and the chances are slightly in favor of the house acting likewise.

A middle Georgia representative said last night if the report as regards the Macon and Northern was agreed to, it would have a disasing to decline, whereas if the lease stands, the bends will-rapidly advance. As a leased line the Macon and Northern will become one of the best paying pieces of property in the state, and will prove a great developer of the country through which it runs, and will fully demonstrate the wisdom of its projector E. ported of free passes.

The resolution was a strong intimation that such things have been done. The Military on Top The legislature has no idea of depriving the state military of its annual encampment appropriation of $25,000. That was demonstrated in the house yesterday.

Mr. Rainey, of Cobb, called up his resolution withdrawing the $25,000 appropriation for next year's encampment and appropriating it to the widows' pension fund.

Mr. Huff explained that the finance committees of many legislatures had recommended that these bonds be paid, and he thought it the duty of the house now to pass this bill. The bonds were honestly issued, he declared, and should be paid. The state had recognized the validity of the bonds by paying the interest up to their expiration as it became due.

Various members wanted to know more about these bonds, and why they were not paid when due.

It was under discussion at 5 o'clock, when the house adjourned until 7 o'clock.

Rev. Samuel Benedict Burled in Marietta

The funeral of Rev. Samuel Benedict occurred at Marietta yesterday morning from St. James church. The beautiful and impressive service was conducted by Revs. Pise and Tinsly, of the diocese of southern Ohio, Rev. H. K. Rees, missionary of the diocese of Georgia, and Rev. J. J. Kent.

"Asleenin Jesus" was beautifully sung by the congregation, also "For All the Saints Who from Their Labors Rest." At the grave "Abide With Me" was sung.

"Abide With Me" was sung.

The palibearers were the wardens of St. Paul's church, Cincinnati, the vestry of St. James church, and a representative from St. John's church, Savannah.

On Wednesday at 4 o'clock funeral services were held in St. Paul's church, Cincinnati. They were conducted by the bishop and clergy of the diocese of southern Ohio, and were deeply impressive.

The remains of Dr. Benedict were laid in the quiet Episcopal burial ground by the loving friends of his earlier years.

That Southern Rose!

Of all the roses that ever blashed beneath a southern sky, perhaps none was ever half so rosy as the unblushing Melrose.

A director in a road which the company is trying to extend, says: "It seems to me that one important point has been ignored by those who have been fighting the railroads. Every mile of road built in our state by ouside capital, brings thousands of dollars into Georgia to stay. Suppose we raise $2,000,000 and build 200 miles of line. That money is invested and cannot be taken away. All the investor ask for is 6 per cent interest. He does not expect to put in $1 and get out $2, and he could not get it if he did expect it. If the original investor draws out somebody else puts the money back. The railroad stays there and the country through which it passes is developed."

KIRALFY IS HERE

The King of Spectacular Shows Reaches Atlanta.

"KING SOLOMON" COMING NEXT WEEK.

A Talk with Kiralfy About the Great Spe taculas Exhibition-Something About Him.

Bolossy Kiralfy, the king of spectacular shows, is in Atlanta.

He came yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock

And an hour later Mr. Kiralfy was on the ex position grounds examining the stage for King Solomon, the greatest, grandest and most picturesque Biblical story ever reproduced. Sanford Cohen, of the exposition company, was at the union depot when the train in, and, as Mr. Kiralfy stepped from the coach, the two friends grasped hands. "Ah, Blossy," said Mr. Cohen, "I am glad to see you."

"Mighty glad to see you Sandy," said the Kiralfy, shaking Mr. Cohen's hand vigorously. But where is the telegraph office?" "Up town," said Mr. Cohen. "But, come, we'll go to the hotel first." "Hotel, nothing. I want to send a telegram to my wife before I do anything. I haven't seen the dear, good woman since yesterday and I must let her know I'm here."

Mr. Cohen led the way to the sidewalk, and, ssisting Mr. Kiralfy into a cab, instructed the driver to pull to the Western Union. At the office the king of showmen wrote nive dollars' worth on a blank, and handing it to the receiv-

"But, Bolossy," said Mr. Cohen, "let's go to the hotel first. You need rest. We'll go out "I'd rather go now." answered Mr. Kiralfy.

"Then maybe we'll go again tomorrow. An hour later the man who produced and has made a fortune out of "King Solomon," had examined the stage, given orders for some changes, located the electric light poles, and was ready to return to the city.

strong character, and great determination is "I'm surprised," he said at his hotel, "at Atlanta."

"And why?" he was asked. "Because I thought I'd find a town of four hundred to five hundred thousand people. Instead of that I find a town of 100,000 rustling, hustling folks."

"Why did you expect to find four hundred to five hundred thousand people?" Because they wanted my King Solomon and wouldn't do without it."

And Mr. Kiralfy shrugged his shoulders in complete harmony with his broken language.

"This show, do you know" he went on, "was never made to move about. It was planned, designed and built for a stationary attraction for a big city like New York. It can't well be moved. It costs too much to do that. Philadelphia, Boston or San Francisco would hardly ask to have it carried to them."

An ignited match touched the end of a half-smoked cigar and Mr. Kiralfy quit talking to catch fire. The smoke began to roll and then and wouldn't do without it.

The smoke began to roll and then "But Atlanta had the nerve to fetch it away down here. You must have plucky people in this city?"

"That's what we've got."
"And they ain't afraid of nothing?"
"Nothing they have encountered so far."
"Not even bankruptcy?"

"Atlanta don't know what that means. Is it a part of your show?"

"Not in this country, if I'm a good judge. Why, the biggest towns of this country have tried to get me to come to them, but I never found a town except one willing to pay the price I ask." "And that-?"

"And that—?"

"And that was Atlanta. I tell you I'm surprised at the pluck I have seen. It is certainly a great town. But I've always heard that Atlanta was as big as New York, and I believe it's so. It's the quality though, and not the quantity of the people that makes it."

"When will your show be here?"

"Some of the people will arrive tomorrow. They are the heads of the various departments and some of the leading people. Next week I

"How many people will you bring?"
"About four hundred. They are all thor oughly trained, and our first show here in Atlanta will be better than our first night New York. You see, I have kept the people together, and they are now thoroughly trained."
"How did you happen to make King Solomon."

"Well, I'm now forty-four years of age, and I've been in the show business since I was four years old. I was born in Pesth, Hungary, and with my brother Imre made my debut as a dancer. We were known as the 'Wonder Children.' In '69 we came to this country and produced the first pantomime show of any con-sequence. Then we made a reputation for our bailets and our novelty work. We repro-duced the 'Black Crook,' and it became the rage. That turned our attention #8 spectacles, and we gave the 'Deluge.' It took. Then, 'Around the World in Eighty Days,' and 'The Enchantment.' Then we had the 'Black Venus,' and it was grand—grand, I tell you."

"Do you know," he went on, "some of the "Do you know," he went on, "some of the best people in the country now come from our ballets? There's Carmencia. In the ballet she attracted no attention, because there were good people around her. But when she got off to herself she made a great hit."

"But King Soloman? How did it originate?"

Well I had been studying the queen of Sheba with a view to making an out-of-door play. Of course I went to the Bible and then I dropped into the story. The more I studied the more I became impressed with King Solo the more I became impressed with King Soloman. Everything showed it a grand theme. I dropped the queen and went for the king."

"How long did it take you to prepare it?"
"I was engaged in active hard study for eight months. The Bible, all ancient histories, Feraleu's history of all nations, and everything throwing light on the ancient history was devoured. I talked to theologians, to everybody. Any minister was food for me. Through these channels I got the costumes, customs, habits and appearance of everything. Accurate descriptions were used and then I began the construction of my play. thing. Accurate descriptions were used and then I began the construction of my play and then I began the construction of my play, and at the same time work on my scenery and properties. Everything was realistic. It was an exact reproduction of what had occurred."

"Maybe that's why some ministers disapprove of it."

"Those who see it and study it don't disapprove of. Here is a letter from one of the most popular ministers in the east who has seen it. Read it."

CAPITOL GOSSIP.

Another effort is being made by the holders of the Bullock railroad bonds, which were re pudiated by the people of Georgia, to effect an agreement with the state by which they can lispose of their holdings to the state.

Yesterday Speaker Howell received from H. B. Philbrook, of New York, attorney for the holders of many of these repudiated bonds, a letter requesting the appointment of a joint committee of the two houses with a view to the adjustment of the matter. He prop to accept the verdict of such a committee and suggests that in case of a settlement new 3 per cent bonds can be floated in New York for the entire amount.

The entire amount of the bonds, he says, is $8,216,000, of which $6,769,000 was issued in aid of the construction of railroads and $1 .-447,000 for various state purpose Mr. Philbrook, in his letter says:

"When the laws and constitutional provis-ions were enacted which forbade the payment the prohibition was based on the allegations that they were not valid obligation against the state because the government which issued them was an usurpation, and because the bonds were illegally or fraudulently issued or sold. These allegations are, we ar satisfied, not supported by the law or the facts as to the bonds held by the undersigned." He then says none of the holders had any onnection with the state government, but bought the bonds in the regular course of busiless, relying on the high reputation and honor of the state and without a suspicion that there was any fraudulency connected with He warts a joint committee appointed at once to inquire into the benefits the state received from the money derived from the sale of these bonds and suggest a settlement in form of an amendment to the constitution to

Speaker Howell laid the matter before the house, but it comes too late for action as the legislature has decided to adjourn on Thurs

Where Will It Go?

The bill passed by the house yesterday providing for the selection of a permanent place for the annual encampment of the state volunteers will undoubtedly precipitate a contest be-tween the various cities and towns of the state. There is not a town in Georgia but which would welcome the encampment. And perhaps every town would be glad to set apart sufficient space for the accommodation of the soldier boys.

The city or town selected will have to offer very strong inducements.

The Credit for the Road Bill.

The bill reported by the special committee on roads, consisting of one representative from each congressional district in the state, was based on the idea suggested in the bill introduced by Mr. Burney, of Morgan, that as near as practicable each county be allowed to per fect its own plans for working the public roads. Under this bill the responsibility rests entirely with the counties whether good road are made or not.

Mr. Burney is entitled to the honor of having suggested the plan adopted by the com-mittee, and no doubt he will receive it.

Mr. Fleming on Annual Sessions. Mr. Fleming said yesterday his position on the Wheeler amendments to the constitution requiring annual sessions and limiting each sion to fifty days seemed to have been mis understood.

"Instead of being opposed to short sessions and economy in public matters," said he, "I am strongly in favor of just those very things, and I believe they can be better accomplished by not passing those amendments. You see one of those amendments commits us to annual sessions with the attending expense of mileage, while I am in favor of having a session only once in two years.

"In my opinion if the bill of Senator Glenn amending the constitution so as to require all charters of railroads, banks, insurance, etc., charters of railroads, banks, insurance, etc., to be granted by the secretary of state under exact provisions and specifications of general laws shall be ratified by the people, then the legislature can finish its business in a single session of forty or fifty days and thus we can come to the biennial sessions intended by the constitution, I confidently believe that is practicable. Why, then compel annual sessions at additional or the proposition of the processing the compel annual sessions at additional or the processing the compel annual sessions at additional or the processing the then, compel annual sessions at additional ex-

"As to fixing an unalterable limit on the length of a session, I think the constitution of 1877 wisely avoided the difficulties that such a rule might entail. The public business might require a few more days of work, but under this new plan adjournment would have to come, no matter what the condition of the business might be."

They Will Ride in Separate Seats. The house committee on railroads gave a hearing to the electric street railway men on the bill requiring electric roads to furnish separate and equal accommodations for both whites and blacks. There were present Mr. Joel Hurt, of the R. Hardy, representing the Augusta lines, and

Atlanta lines; Mr. W. C. Boykin and Mr. J. Mr. Clement Saussy, of Savannah; Messrs. Woodward and Mountain of the Atlanta and Fort McPherson, with their attorney, Colonel B. F. Abbott. They argued that such a thing as furnishing separate cars was impracticable and almost impossible. Indeed, it was out of the question. It would not only incommode the public, but would cost the electric roads money than they could afford spend. Mr. Hurt asked t police powers be conferred upon conductors in order that they could require whites and blacks to sit on separate seats in the cars.

Colonel Abbott spoke at some length on the same line, as did the representatives of the lines outside of Atlanta The committee accepted the suggestion and subcommittee will draw up a bill to this effect.

During his talk Mr. Hurt made some interesting statements about his conductors "knock ing down" fares. He told of his riding on the car and counting the passengers to the number of fifty, but the conductor only rang up thirty-six fares. He told of dismissing the man and how he had to employ "spotters" to watch his conductors. After the employment of spotters became known to the conductors his business picked up perceptibly. The first week after he put on "spotters" his receipts increased $1,400. He told this to demonstrate the difficulties of making money on electric street car lines. street car lines.

WILL BE APPEALED.

The Indictment Against Sanges and Others Which Was Quashed

WILL BE CARRIED TO A HIGHER COURT.

The "Honest Man's Friend and Protecto Case Goes to the Jury This Morning. Custom House News.

The recent decision of Justice Lamar in the case of George Sanges and others will be appealed from. Colonel S. A. Darnell, the district attorney, announced in court yesterday morning that this would be done. Several months ago, it will be remembered, George Wright, a witness in the United States courts, was waylaid in Cobb county by Sanges and others. He was assaulted on the high-way and murdered. The men were all indicted by the government on the charges of conspiracy and murder. Glenn & Maddox, who represented the defendants, demurred to the indictment. The case was of such importance that Justice Lamar heard it last May His decision was filed on Monday, in which the demurrer was sustained and the indictment quashed. Judge Newman concurred with him. But the government had still a resort. According to the revised statutes of the United States, when an indictment in the district or circuit court is quashed, the United States atcorney has the right to appeal. This the government will do. Colonel Darnell stated yesterday that an appeal would be filed asking that the case be carried on a writ of error to the supreme court of the United States-the highest law of the land.

This is a most unusual proceeding, and is a thing unknown to the state courts, where a person connot be again indicted for a crime charged in a quashed indictment.

The bondsmen of Sanges are to be notified that they will be on his bond until the case has been finally disposed of. The Last Day.

The Last Day.

The "honest man's friend" case will go to the jury this morning. Before the day is ended the seven men charged with conspiracy will have learned their fate.

The trial continued yesterday morning. It began with the introduction of testimony by the defense. Commissioner Alfread, of Pickens county, before whom John R. Alken was witness, when his trouble with the moonshiners began, and Representative Cagle the preacher and legislator, were the only ones to be put on the stand.

Judge Allread spoke of the good character of the defendants up till the time they were charged with conspiracy. He stated that they had borne a good reputation throughout the ounty.

Mr. Cagle corroborated the words of the commissioner. Colonel Darnell began to cross-question him, and was attempting to prove by him the good character of Coffee, the traitor to the band who had turned state's evidence, when Mr. Glenn objected and was sustant by the court. Not, however, before it was shown that Coffee was a deacon in Rev. Mr. Cagle's church and had always been regarded as a religious

The district attorney then took up the case. He wanted to introduce Professor Moore, an expert in chirography, to show that the bylaws of the band were written by Wigginton, and presented a summons from Wigginton, as justice of the peace, by which to compare it. Once more Colonel Glenn objected and was with that the argument began. Colonel Darnell began for the prosecution, and was followed by Colonel Bill Day for the defense. Hon. Carter Tate next spoke for the government. Colonel Glenn had well begun when court was adjourned until this morning at 10 cycleck.

Then Colonel Glenn will conclude his speech, and the argument be closed by Colonel Darnell.

THE BERNER BILL

Has Been Laid Away by the Senate for the Present.

THE DAY IN THE STATEHOUSE.

The Senate Declines to Pass the Berner Bill or the Smith Substitute—Yes-terday in the Senate.

The Berner bill, the Smith substitute, and the like were killed in the senate yesterday, and this ends the story of extreme railroad

The house bill was reported to the senate

The enemies of the railroads and those who favor disruption of things generally at once started the report that the policy of those op-posed to such legislation as that proposed posed to such legislation as that proposed would be to filibuster, and thus prevent any action until the legislature should adjourn. It was spread far and wide that such a policy had been agreed upon, and that those who an Yesterday in the Senate. When the senate met yesterday morning it oceeded at once on the report of the railroad committee, which recommended a substitute in favor of the house bill. But the substitute was little, if any, better than the house bill, and contained the most objectionable feature of that bill—the litigation clause.

The minority report of the railroad com-mittee was submitted, and on that report the opponents of such legislation rested their case. were willing that the matter should come to a close at once. Three speeches were made in behalf of the bill and none against it, the strong report of the minority of the committee being so satisfactory as to justify the opponents of the bill in resting it with the senate. The committee's minority report, which is worth

An Effort to Postpone.

There was an effort to filibuster, but it did not come as prophesied. Strange to say, the effort to delay came from the friends of the bill. A motion was made to displace the special order and postpone the consideration of the bill until next Monday.

Senator Cabaniss, the leader of the opposition, at once raised objection. He said that those who opposed the bill had been placed in the attitude of delaying action on it, and now the proposition to delay came from the other side. He was willing that the matter sohuld come to a vote at once, and was unwilling that the tactics of the other side be adopted. It simply meant that they wanted to prejudice the senate by the injection of the blased report of a committee which was appointed to investigate the validity of the leases which were being attacked. This committee had adroitly held back its report, and was endeavoring to that it might have some effect on the pending bill. He opposed the motion to postpone until Monday, and his opposition was sustained by the senate by a vote of 23 to 14.

So the bill came up for a final reading. Three for It, but None Against It.

Three speeches followed consecutively in lavor of the bill, Senator Callaway speaking irst for it, after which Senator Zachry moved that the whole matter be indefinitely postponed, and on this he called the previous question, which was sustained. The committee, being entitled to twenty minutes to sustain its sub stitute, Senator Terrell occupied nineteer ninutes of the time. Senator Ellington made the most of the other minute, but had not fairly begun when he was rapped down by the

Then the vote was taken on the motion to ostpone indefinitely.

The yeas and nays were called, and the result was announced as follows:

Those voting to postpone the Berner bill in-Senators Beard, Cabaniss, Candler, Culpepper, Flint, Gill. Gienn, Golden, Harlow, Harp, Hodges, Johnson of the thirty-ninth, Lamb, Mullis, Par-ton, Smith of the twenty-eighth, Vincent, Walker, Williams, Zachry—20.

Those voting against indefinite postpone Senators Beck, Boyd, Callaway, Culver, Eason, Ellington, Hill, Irvine, Johnson of the twenty-first, McRae, Nunnally, Terrell, Todd, Warren,

At the opening of the senate Mr. Smith, of the twenty-eighth, asked to have a bill relating to spirituous liquors reconsidered. Mr. Johnson, of the twenty-first, moved that the special order be set aside and that the bill be reconsidered.

Mr. Cabaniss wanted the special order folhad had a month in which to attend to it, he said, and he asked to have the Berner bill considered at once. The motion to set aside the special order was lost by a vote of 14 to 21.

President Mitchell declared the Berner bill now before the senate as the special order of the day.

It was read for a third hearing.
An argument by the supporters of the substitute then followed. Mr. Callaway Talks.

Mr. Callaway, in stating his reasons for supporting the substitute reported by the commit-

I am not opposed to railroads nor in favor of any legislation that would injure railroads or I am not opposed to railroads nor in favor of any legislation that would injure railroads or damage their stocks and securities. Every town, city and community in Georgia owes its growth and development in a very large measure to railroads, and it was the wise policy of the state and people of the state that has always encouraged the building of railroads and invited investment of capital in railroad enterprises in the state. It has been well said that the condition of a country's highways is one of the best evidences of its progress and civilization. Railroads are but the perfections of highways. But I do not believe this legislation will injure the railroads in the state or affect the price of their securities. The railroad situation in Georgia demands some legislation on this line. The substitute proposed by the committee is a very small boon to give to the public and is not violent enough to hurt any rai-road or railroad combination that is disposed to deal fairly by the people. For the last fitty or sixty years the people of Georgia have been building their own railroads, and local capitalists have been putting their money in railroads. The endeavor has always been in every community to get two or more competing lines to every town and city in the state. During the last ten or infecent years the state has permitted these various lines to combine together and form great trunk systems. Such a one was the Central railroad, with all its connections, which, with its steamship lines, gave us connections with New York and the eastern markets. These same markets were reached by the Richmond and Dauville railroad and its connections, and the connection, but the consolidation of these systems under one management destroys that competition, which the people who built these roads are entitled to enjoy. The constitution guarantees to the people the benefits of competition.

which come to and go from Georgia to other points of the country, which in fact are the freights which the people of the state have to pay. As for the interstate commission, that is too far from home, and it is entirely impracticable for our people to get relief from them. This substitute only strengthens the hands of our state commission and empowers them to carry out just what the milroads say they are willing to do—that is force the railroads to charge reasonable rates and give good service, not only between points within the state, but between this state and points without. If the railroads do this in compliance with the commission's rules, no suit can ever be filed under this bill, and none of the damages of litigation will accrue. But if they refuse so to comply, these combinations which have destroyed competition and robbed the people of the good service and reasonable rates that competition gave them, are wrong and contrary to the constitution, and ought to be broken up.

The bill leaves the contral of the roads in the contrary to the constitution, and ought to be broken up.

The bill leaves the contral of the roads in the hands of the commission, only seeking to strengthen their hands so that they can enforce their rulings. I confess that of my own knowledge it know of ne evils total have so far resulted. But a condition exists which may bring great evil from the oppression of monopoly. Those now controling these roads, I presume, are friends to Georgia. But what assurance have we got that Mr. Gould and his associates who care nothing for the people of Georgia, or the minority stockholders, will not, whenever caprice or avariect suggests it, say to those now interest of the condition of the pot of the satisfaction of Mr. Gould? In conclusion I must say that I do not think this legislation will affect the interest of the widows and orphans who own stocks and bonds in these roads. I believe their interest is safer in the hands of this legislature than in that of Wall street speculators. I don't think the bill will hurt the railroads. I do think it will help the people.

To Indefinitely Postpone.

Mr. Zachry then moved to indefinitely postpone both the original bill and the substitute therefor, and on this he called for the previous

The call for the previous question was sustained by a vote of 18 to 11. The question now was on the indefinite post-ponement of the bill and its substitute.

Senator Terrell for the Committee. Mr. Johnson, of the twenty-first, yielded his time to Mr. Terrell.

Senator Terrell then occupied the full twenty minutes allowed under the rules to the committee after the previous question was called.

called.

He said that judging from the preliminary votes taken on the bill it mightappear useless for him to say anything, but as he was one of the mem bers of the senate railroad committee, which drafted the substitute, he deemed it a duty he owed himself, the senate and his constituents to state his position on the question.

The substitute reported by the railroad committee makes no war on capital, and its very terms show that it does not. Capital is entitled to a fair return on its outlay. The conservative spirit and tone of the Georgia legislation upon this subject in the past stands as a guarantee that no unreasonable avariare will ever be made on capital by tone of the Georgia legislation upon this subject in the past stands as a guarantee that no unreasonable warfare will ever be made on capital by the enactment of any unreasonable laws by this, or any future, legislature. This substitute is no such warfare, and if it was he would not engage in it. The question presented by the substitute was simply a business proposition. Raifroads are public institutions charged with the payment of interest on private funds invested therein, and are not recognized as private property to be controlled by its stockholders absolutely by any civilized nation on earth. Where governments do not own them directly, the government seeks to control them. Governmental control is not an open question in Georgia. The policy of the state as embodied in the constitution and the act of 1878 establishing the commission settles that question. There is nothing in this substitute but government control just on the line of the act of 1878, and those who favor the original commission law should certainly favor this measure.

There are two means clearly set forth in the constitution looking to the protection of the people against unjust and extortionate rates. First, the railroad commission, and second, competition. The commission to protect the people against unjust local rates, and commertion to protect ple against unjust and extortionate rates. First, the railroad commission, and second, competition. The commission to protect the people against unjust local rates, and competition to protect them against extortionate interstate rates. The commission is an acknowledged success by everybody so far as its powers reach, and this substitute does nothing but legitimately extend its powers. There has been a constant and gradual decrease in local rates ever since the establishment of the commission, and to show that it does not abuse its powers there exists no friction between the commission and the railroads. In 1878, when the commission law was enacted, unjust local rates and pooling were the evils, and the legislature sought to remedy those evils by that law. Competition has been lessened and the consolidation of competing lines is the evil of this day. The natural and inevitable tendency of interstate rates is upward. If the national commission was vested with the same powers as our commission, then there would be no necessity for this legislation, but such is not the case, and it is the duty of this legislature to supply as well as it may this lack of power. This measure is an extension of power and gives to the commission the same supervision over sales and leases that the original act gave over pooling.

Under the operation of this substitute the state commission could regulate interstate rates. Of course, no money penalty for aviolation of its rules could be enforced on account of the United commission could regulate interstate rates. Of course, no money penalty for a violation of its rules could be enforced on account of the United States constitution, but with the reserve power in its discretion to institute proceedings to set aside all illegal sales and leases the rules and regulations of interstate rates would be obeyed by the all illegal sales and leases the rules and regulations of interstate rates would be obeyed by the railroads and no suits would ever be brought. The interstate commerce of Georgia for this year will be about one million tons. An increase of the freight rate of 5 cents per hundred would be $1 per ton, or $1,000,000, the equivalent of $2,000 bales of cotton—as much as one-half of the state tax collected from the people of Georgia. This increase can be made under our present laws, and the people would be entirely remediless.

This substitute also protects the minority stockholders in that it requires the approval of the commission before a greater amount of stocks or bonds are issued that the value of the property would justify.

No suits will ever be brought, and indeed they cannot be brought unless the railroads refuse to obey the rules and regulations of the commission.
Should the roads refuse to obey, then the commission imposes a fine under existing laws, and then should that fail to have their orders obeyed, the commission is vested with authority, in their discretion, by and with the consent and approval of the governor and attorney general to institute proceedings to set aside all illegal contracts of sale or lease. The original bill provided that these contracts should be investigated and if found illegal have proceedings instituted to set the same aside by the attorney general before the courts. The substitute allows the illegal contracts to stand so long as the railroads conform to the rules and regulations of the commission. A more conservative measure could not be drafted. It is simply justice to the railroads, to the minority stockholders and to the freight payers, who are the people of this state.

The yeas and nays were then called for on

people of this state.

The yeas and nays were then called for on the motion to indefinitely postpone, with the result above stated.

Mr. Cabaniss then moved that the action of the senate on the bill be immediately transmitted to the house. Carried by a vote of 21 to 14.

THE MINORITY REPORT.

The Document on Which the Opposition to the Bill Rested.

Following is the report of the minority of the railroad committee, which was endorsed by the senate in its action defeating the legis lation against which the report is directed.

lation against which the report is directed.

It embodies the arguments against the bill, and the opponents of the measure rested their case without delaying the senate with any discussion. The printed report of the committee was placed in the hands of avery senator:

The Minority, deport:

The undersigned members of the railroad committee beg leave to submit the following minority report on house bill No. 915, and substitutes:

There is no need for the passage of any act to prevent any evils which may be produced by any sales, leases, contra ts of agreements of railroad companies, or persons or individuals controlling railroad companies in this state. The legislature has already passed all appropriate legislation necessary.

The general assembly, which convened immediate reliroad companies in this state. The legislature has already passed all appropriate legislation necessary.

The general assembly, which convened immediately after the adjournment of the constitutional convention, assumed the duty of passing appropriate legislation to carry into effect article 4 of the constitution of this state. Many of the members of that legislature had taken part in the deliberations of the convention. The discussions and ideas which controlled that body were fresh in the minds of all men charged with the duty of enforcing article 4 of the constitution. Upon the subject of railroads, the legislature of 1878 and 79, in order to discharge this duty, passed what is known as the railroad commission act. See acts of 1878 and 79, pares 125-131.

This act is also found in code, sections 719(a) to 719(p) inclusive. Section 1 of this article relates wholly to the right of taxation; section 2 to the regulation of railroads. This act of 1878 and 79, above alluded to, in sections 3 to 7 inclusive, carries into effect paragraph 1 of section 2 of article 4, prohibiting unjust discrimination and unreasonable rates, and enforces the same by adequate penalties, by conferring upon the railroad commission full power for the making of rates and obtaining all information necessary to make just and reasonable rates and all proper and necessary rules.

contract should be one which should have effect as to freight and passenger tariffs.

Section 8 of said act, which is section 719(h) of the code, gives the commission full and absolute power over such contracts, requiring them to be submitted to said commission for inspection and correction, that it may be seen whether or not they are a violation of the law or of the provisions of the constitution, or of the rules and regulations of esid commission; and prescribing that "said commission may make such rules and regulations as to such contracts as may then be deemed necessary and proper, and any such agreement not approved by said commission, or by virtue of which rates shall be charged exceeding the rates fixed for freight and passengers (by said commission) as shall be deemed, held and taken to be violations of article 4, section 2 (erroneously written 1 in code), paragraph 40f the constitution, and shall be illegal and void." This gives the commission mappe power to make all necessary "rules and regulations as to such contracts" as may be proper to fit each separate case as it arises.

Section 719 (i) prescribed by the commission it may be sued, if after due notice of such violation, it fails to make ample and full recompense for the wrong, as directed by the commission, within thirty days, and shall incur a penalty of from one thousand to five thousand dollars.

This act has been amended by this present legislature and the commission is now by law, and regulations and collect this penalty. The right of suit to recover the actual damages is also preserved to the individual, and by section 719(1) of the code, the term railroad corpor tion, or railroad company, embraces all persons, irms and companies, and all associations of persons, whether incorporated or otherwise, doing business as common carriers upon any of the lines of railroad in this state.

whether incorporated or otherwise, doing business as common carriers upon any of the lines of railroad in this state.

The last legislature gave the commission full power over the making of joint rates between two or more connecting roads, and authority over the erection of depots has been likewise conierred upon them by statute.

Your committee, therefore, deem that ample power has been rested in the commission to thoroughly protect the people of this state, and that the policy of this state has been clearly shown to be, that the people should be protected by and through the action of the commission upon rates.

We deem that any attack or threatened attack upon existing relations between railroad companies in this state would be detrimental to the interest, would be detrimental to the interest and prosperity of this state, destructive of investments which have been made under legislative sanction and nurtiul to all classes.

So Say the Capitol Avenue Residents and Property Owners, REGARDING ATLANTA REAL ESTATE CO.

The Property Held at $300,000-It Is Assessed at $142,600-What Can Be Done?-A Committee's Report.

One of the committees appointed by the residents and property owners of Capitol avenue has unearthed a matter of considerable importance.

committee consists of Judge Rufus T. Dorsey, William E. Orchard and T. T.

At the meeting night before last Judge Dorsey read the following report: The undersigned who were apppointed by this meeting to investigate the property of the At-lanta Real Estate Company, beg leave to make the following report:

We find that the property known as railroad right of way, leading from the Georgia road from the southeastern side to the western side of the city, a part of which lies on Capitol avenue, belongs to a corporation known as the Atlanta Real Estate Company, and that the same consists of nearly two hundred acres of land.

We find that the vacant property of said corporation is assessed by the city assessor at the sum of $63,600, and that the improved part of the property belonging to said corporation is assessed at the sum of $79,000, making the total assessment

We find, upon investigation, that the owners of said property, about sixteen months ago refused an offer of $225,000 for said property, asking for the same the sum of $20,000. Of course the property would not bring as much sold as a whole as if cut up into lots and sold to actual settlers is to our opinion that said property is not assessed for more than 50 per cent, if that much, of its true value. And in view of that fact we recommend that a committee be appointed by this body whose business it shall be to call the attention of the city assessors to this matter, and ask them to make such assessment as will tend to equalize the burdens of taxation.

Your committee is more willing to make this recommendation in view of the fact that this large body or unimproved property, which cannot recommendation in view of the fact that this large body or uninproved property, which cannot be bought in single lots at the prevailing prices in the neighborhood in which said property is located, has a tendency, and does prevent the rapid growth and development of almost the entire southern part of the city.

Dr. Craig reported that he had accidentally met Colonel George Adair, agent for the owners of the property in question, and he was very much wrought up.

"Colonel Adair," Dr. Craig said, "had just finished reading the report of our meeting when I went into his office, and he was exceedingly animated. He wanted to know by what process of law the owners of this property could be made to sell it, and what sort of legal steps we proposed taking. He stated that Colonel Platt, the principal owner, could not be reached for he was traveling abroad, but he was expected in New York soon. So far as the paying of taxes was concerned he had, he said, paid them and the property had

What action the Capitol avenue citizens purpose taking is not yet known. At the next meeting a further report on the subject will be submitted.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, October 9.—The stock market today was practically a repetition of those of the last two days, and was in the main a steady contest between the bull and bear factions among the local and prossional trading element, and after mild fluctuation in both directions the advantage rests with the forme party. The opening was heavy and lower, in sym-pathy with a lower London market, but as a strong pathy with a lower London market, but as a strong-tone was immediately developed, there was a supri-cion that the London market had been rigged from this side for the purpose of buying in the short stocks. Atchison bore the brunt of the early pressure, but the entire list moved up slowly, with here and there a more marked advance. These were among specialties principally, and Nickel Plate stocks, Rock Island, Burlington and Missouri Pacific rose over 1 per cent. Prices slowly crept up in the general list until toward 2 o'clock p. m., when the highest figures of the day 2 o'clock p. m., when the highest figures of the day were attained, when a rum or of the new issue of stock en the Hocking Valley caused a drop of nearly 1 ger cent in that stock, to which the rest of the list recent in that stock, to which the rest of the list re-sponded, and fractional concessions followed all along the line. Hocking Valley, however, afterward recov-ered all of its loss, and the general lists steadied. Among the strong stocks may be mentioned Louis-ville, New Albany and Chicago, and the proposed issue of stock on that road, announced lately, to purchase rolling stock, is regarded in Wall street as judialous and most advantaceous to stockholders, rather than an issue of wonds, as the latter would have added to the fixed charges. The market finally closed dull but steady at close to the best of the day. The fina changes, however, show only fractional advances, with one of special importance. Sales of listed stocks to day aggregated 225,009 shares; unlisted stocks, 4,000

Cahn & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas. NEW YORK, October 9. At the opening London was a seller of about 10,000 shares of different stocks was a select of about 10,000 shares of unterent stocks, but soon after the sentiment changed, closed, and they rebought about half of what they had sold. The mar-ket today, taken as a whole, was fairly steady, and a good deal of apparent strength was due to the coverng of short contracts by room traders preparatory to good bank statement tomorrow. A great deal of money has arrived this week from Europe, and the shipments of currency west have fallen off to a considerable extent. It is thought the The Atchinson earnings for the fourth week of September, showing an increase of $97,000, was an agreeable surprise, and there was some buying of the stock for the Boston account.

Still the stock closed about the same as last evening. Exports of wheat from this port today were over one-half million bushels. This is the biggest (otal from this port in thirty days.

There was nothing new to effect speculation, and there is also nothing new to million.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, October 2.—[Special.]—The continued buying by Manchester in Liverpool bears out our advices of yesterday, that spinners were well sold shead without protecting themselves by purchases of cotton. In the arrival market the tone was quiet at 2@3 points decline, but the market was a very nervous one and recovered finally, closing barely steady after a most active day. Our market opened firm at 8-16 points advance on the posting of the signal service bulletin giving particulars of killing frosts at many places in Arkansas, Louistian and Mississippi to close easy on giving particulars of Kiling Prosts at many places in Arkansas, Louistians and Mississisppi to close easy on the heavy interior movement at last night's prices. Commission houses identified with the bull side sold freely on the advance, checking the rise; and finally, on the receipt of a telegram from New Orleans stating that a runor was current there that the bureau would be 79.3, the market yielded. No confidence is placed in this report, yet it naturally had the effect of causing the market to decline. Prost is predicted generally for exposed places in the cotton belt, and severe frosts in Texas. Damage from frost will be decliedly a more important factor than the bureau report tomorrow.

Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter.

By private wire to Youngblood & Haas.

NEW YORK, October 9—The weather bureau reported killing frosts throughout the cotton bells, while predictions were for continued cold weather, causing a firm opening and advance of about & points. Later in the day, on some desire to realize owing to the uncertainty as to what the bureau may be tomorrow, values again became easier, closing at about last night's quotations. It is of course impossible to forecast the bureau report. Current opinion and popular estimate seem to have about 75 as about the expected percentage. We believe, with a condition of 75, the market is likely to sell off, for a depreciation of 7.7 per cent from last month, and only 5 points below last would indicate a crop of 7½ million bales or more. Lehman Bros.' Cotton Letter. would indicate a crop of 7½ million bales or more. Our latest advices from Texas would indicate some mprovement in the condition for that state, owing to the good weather during September. Whatever the bureau may prove to be we believe its effect will be merely temporary, and we continue to have a favorable opinion as to ultimately higher prices. It has been currently reported here and in Europe that we have changed our views, but this is entirely unwarranted, for, in the event of such being the case, we would not or, in the event of such being the case we would no have failed to promptly advise you. By Telegraph.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO. October 9.—Wheat started out a little

"wabbly" this morning, selling on both sides of last night's closing figures around the opening, then be-came strong, advancing about 1½c, and holding nearly came strong, advancing about 1140, and holding nearly all of it to the close. December opened at 981ac, sold to 981ac, broke to 981ac, then advanced with material reaction to $1.001a. In the afternoon it eased off some on realizing sales, going to $1.000, reacted to $1.001ac, and closed steady at $1.001ac. Closing continental cubles quoted Berlin 31ac marks lower for October, Paris 10 centimes higher on November but 15 centimes lower on January and April, with Antwerp 121ac centimes lights.

Corn was strong and higher, largely in sympath; with wheat, but trade was slow. October opened a 521c, touched 523c, sold to 531c without materia on, but weakened near the end of the sea recession, but weakened near the end of the session and closed at 53%c, against 52%c at the close yesterday. Oats were neglected and the price remained steady. Hog products were weak and lower from the free selling by packers and liquidation by December longs. This, in the face of higher prices for hogs at the close; shows a loss of 5600c in the price of pork, 2560c in lard, and 2%c in ribs, except October; which is unchanged.

The leading futures ranged as follows in Chicago oday. WHEAT-Opening. Highest. 5214 48% 42 53 1/4 49 42 1/4 30700 9 62 4

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas.

CHICAGO, October 8.—At the opening of the mar-ket the wheat traders were considerably mixed in their views. The calls were conflicting and some retheir views. The calls were conflicting and some reported slow and in buyers' favor, others firm. The first bull news came from the New Duluth parties reporting all offers of yesterday accepted at full prices, and the sale of 750,000 bushels of wheat for direct exports. This news was accompanied by some good buying orders. The rumor that Russia was going to prohibit the exportation of wheat was again afont. Next came numerous buying orders from New York, followed by the report that from sixty to one hundred boatloads had been bought for export. Finally the closing cables were generally reported firmer and higher. So much bull news was the cause of several shorts, and there was some good local speculative buying. On the other hand, the local demand for cash was poor. St. Louis reported cash, and the October delivery three to four cents below Decamber. This, with the clearing weather in the northwest, and the prospects of increased receipts, was the only encour-agement for short sellers.

There is a good demand for cash corn, and the mar-ket is firm. The speculative trading was very light and confined to a very narrow range.

The provision market was dull and dragging, closing at a shade lower price. It seems to have gotten into a rut where it has no attractions for speculators.

at No. 7 North Broad Street.
For a number of years Messrs. J. W. Phillips &

Co. have been doing a large wholesale commission business at 61 South Broad street. Their wagons and drays have been running from that place to all the grocery stores throughout the city.

Now it is changed, as they have moved to the large and commodious building No. 7 North Broad street, the store formerly occupied by Messrs. J. F. Simmons & Co.

F. Simmons & Co.
Messrs. Phillips & Co., are among the best known wholesale commission merchants in the south. They have their correspondents scattered from Florida to New York, and sell thousands upon thousands of dollars worth of goods every, year. They make a specialty in strictly first-class goods. Their Florida connections are of the very best, and the bananas, pineapples, oranges and other tropical fruits, you get from them are of the very best quality.

Their eastern and western connections are also first-class, and the potatoes, apples, cabbages, and for that matter all kinds of produce grown in the eastern and western states may be had from this old and reliable firm at as reasonable prices as you can get them anywhere.

These gentlemen know their business thoroughly. They know when to buy and where to buy, and to this fact their hundreds of customers

Will Be Formally Thrown Open on October 20th with Exercises.
The Odd Fellows' hall, in the new McDonald building, on Whitehall street, is the finest furnished hall in the city.
All of the furnishings have been specially selected. The carpet, a marvel of beauty, was woven to order, and the elegant furniture is of the finest pattern and finish that could be had.

is of the finest pattern and finish that could be had.

The different lodges have combined together, and by bringing their means together, have secured a handsomely equipped hall, where every lodge in the city can meet. They have spared no expense that could have added to the elegance of the interior furnishing of their hall, which they have leased for a term of years.

On the 20th instant the beautiful hall will be thrown open, with appropriate exercises. All the Odd Fellows in the city are expected to be present on this occasion, and a number of distinguished citizens will be invited to attend. A nice programme for the occatend. A nice programme for the occasion is being arranged for that day by the committee which has the matter in hand. The occasion will be made a success, as should be the opening of the Odd Fellows magnificent quarters.

A Sister Charges Her Brother with Fraud. Alexander Grotte Acquitted-Criminals Sent to the Penitentiary.

Again yesterday were the various courts in the county courthouse almost deserted. Most of the lawyers had continued their cases so they could attend the supreme court and the United States court. But Judge Howard Van Epps, in the city court, and Judge Richard H. Clark, in the criminal court, were busy all day. No cases were tried by Judge Marshall J. Clarke. A number of interesting suits were

The Criminal Court.

In the criminal wing of the superior court, Judge Richard H. Clark presiding. a number of malefactors were made to feel the rigor of the law. In the absence of Solicitor General Charles Hill, his kinsman, Willie P. Hill, acted as prosecuting attorney.

Most interesting of all the cares tried was that of the state vs. Alexander Grotte, indicted for larcency after trust. His lawyer, Mr. Robert J. Jordan, managed the case so adroitly that it never went to the jury. When all the evidence was in Judge Clark instructed the jury to acquit the defendant, and a verdict of 'not guilty" was rendered, the jurors not quiting their seats. As soon as he charged Grotte was rearrested and taken back to the county jail. There are still other cases against him for larceny after trust. Moses Green was tried for burglary, and acquitted. Jim Brown was found guilty of burglary. Henry Smith was acquitted of the same charge, and so was Will Howen. Calvin Clay and Lucius Battle were convicted of burglary, and sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary.

Will Holmes was convicted of burglary, and sentenced to pay $25 or to go to the penitentiary for one year. Tom Cobb was tried for assault to murder

The jury acquitted him. George Milton was convicted of attempting to commit a robbery, and his sentence was Jesse Coleman sues the Atlanta Consolidated Railway Company for $2,500. The 19th of last month he was working as a laborer for the defendant. Whilst engaged in laying belgian blocks one of his co-workers carelessly let fall a twenty-five-pound stone which fell upon his foot and crushed it. The paper was filed by John A. Wimpey.

A Similar Suit. The same attorney, in behalf of Henry Dixon, institutes a suit for $2,500 damages against the same defendant. His foot was mashed and fractured in very much the same manner whilst he was laying blocks for the Suing the City. William Ashford sues the city of Atlanta for $2,500. In the declaration the plaintiff aileges that the 7th of last June, while he was driving a vehicle along Spring street, he was injured because of the bad condition of said thoroughfare. The suit is brought by Messrs. J. W. Austin and J. G. Camp.

He Wants $10,000.

A. L. Johnson sues the Fulton bag and cotton mills for $10,000. The 7th of December, 1890, he received painful injuries while dis-charging his duties as a card grinder. The Austin & Boylston Matter.

The Austin & Boylston Matter.

This case has occupied Judge Clarke in chambers four Saturdays and will come up again this morning. Mr. Charley Hopkins, who began his argument last Saturday afternoon, will conclude. Then Judge Clarke will be asked to adjourn the further hearing till next week, owing to the enforced absence of some of the lawyers engaged in the case.

Bar Meetings.

In the city courtroom yesterday afternoon there was a largely attended bar meeting, and there will be another this morning at 9 o'clock in the superior court.

A Peculiar Suit. A Peculiar Suit.

In the clerk's office of the superior court yesterday, Mr. R. J. Jordan, attorney for Mrs. J. A. DeFoor and her husband, James A. DeFoor, instituted a suit against John F. Ryan and John F. Morris. The purpose of the suit is to nullify the sale of certain city property. In the declaration the plaintiff, Mrs. DeFoor, says she is the wife of James A. DeFoor and sister of John F. Morris. She and her brother are the children of Mr. C. C. and her brother are the children of Mr. C. C. Morris, who died in Atlanta some years ago. He was a wealthy man, and a considerable part of his property was bequeathed to his two children. This property, owned jointly by the plaintiff and her brother, consisted principally of the store at the corner of Hunter the plaintill and her brother, consisted principally of the store at the corner of Hunter and Broad streets. The property fronts twenty-seven feet on Broad street and runs back seventy feet on Hunter street. Early in the present year Mr. Ryan desired to purchase this property to add to his store. Various offers were made for it. First $5,000 was offered, then $25,000, and finally $30,000. Mr. Morris was disposed to sail the present but offered, then $25,000, and finally $30,000. Mr. Morris was disposed to sell the property, but he refused these first offers. The declaration goes on to say that Mr. Morris went to Mr. DeFoor and told him that Mr. Steve Ryan was Defoor and told him that Mr. Steve Ryan was willing to pay $27,000 for the store. This brought about a conference which took place in Mr. Ryan's store. At this consultation were Mr. Defoor, acting for his wife as her agent, and Mr. Ryan and Mr. Morris. In behalf of his wife Defoor consented to the sale at $27,000 because Morris assured him this was the top figure it would bring. Accordingly bonds for title were made out and duly signed. The transaction was consummated in the office of Mr. Walter R. Brown, Mr. John F. Ryan, Sr., being present. The plaintiff avers that not till this time did The plaintiff avers that not till this time did she know who the real purchaser was. She had thought she was dealing with Mr. Stephen A. Ryan. A check for half the purchase money was given, and notes were signed for the residue, falling due in one and two years. Mrs. Morris was under the impression the sale was on the basis of $30,000. In her declara-tion she makes her brother a joint defendant with the Ryans, charging him with collusion and fraud. She asserts that he took advan-tage of his relationship to perpetrate the fraud, promising nothing would ever be said about it. Mrs. DeFoor avers that she only found out these facts after Steve Ryan's failure. The these facts after Steve Ryan's failure. The two plaintiffs now ask the court to decide that the sale was null and void, and to cancel the bonds for title, they offering to return the amount received as one-half of the purchase money.

The County Commissioners.

The County Commissioners.

At 10 o'clock yesterday morning there was a called meeting of the county commissioners. Dr. Wilson was the only member of the board absent. The object of the meeting was to arrange for work to be done by the Atlanta Consolidated Street Rallway Company on the Flat Shoals road. The Decatur dummy runs along the road, half the distance being in the city limits. There is about half a mile of the line outside the limit, and it is over this part that the commissioners have jurisdiction. Captain Donaldson and Engineer Baylor were present. They were appointed a committee to consider whether or not the company should be required to pave a part of the road, and if so, how much. No definite action was taken by the commissioners beyond asking the committee on public works to consider the matter in all its bearings and to report at the next regular meeting of the board, or at a special meeting should one be called.

He Is On His Way to Wilmington, N. C., to Open a Meeting.

Sam Jones was in Atlanta yesterday. He wore the same slouch hat; the same look of don't-care-what happens-I'm-all-right, and smoked the same pipe that he smoked in Rome, when he called on the grand jury, last Thursday, in response to its invitation.

He was on his way to Wilmington, N. C., where he goes to conduct a meeting.

literally means bad air. Poisonous germs arising from low, marshy land or from decaying vegetable matter are breathed into the lungs, taken up by the blood, and unless the vital fluid is purified by the use of a good medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, the unfortunate victim is soon overpowered. Even in the more advanced cases, where the terrible fever prevails, this successful medicine has effected remarkable cures. Thisse who are exposed to malarial or other poisons should keep the blood pure by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla.

ATLANTA REAL ESTATE EX-

The real estate market still continues quiet, and will probably continue so until the money market is easier. We look for relaxation in a couple of weeks and an easy time after the Xmas holidays. Real estate will then advance and keep pace with the rapid growth of the city. We have a large list of property of all kinds, from which we select the following bargains:

Nice farm of 152 acres, ½ mile from railway station, and 25 miles from Atlanta; 4-room house, barn, etc; $1,600.

Tract at West End fronting 265 feet on Holderness street and 320 feet on Greenwich; natural grove and close to electric railway; $2,500.

3½ acres only 1½ miles from center of city, surrounded by streets and close to car line; $3,000.

Fine farm, 400 acres, 200 acres open, 150 acres original growth tumber; 6-room house, barn, cotton gin and three tenant houses; only five miles from county seat, and 20 miles from Atlanta, $4,500.

Choice stock farm of 364 acres in one of the most beautiful valleys in north Georgia, 2¼ miles from railway station; about 100 acres under cultivation, balance in timber; good dwelling of five rooms, barn and all necessary outbuildings, $2,500.

1,500 acres of selected timber land in North Carolina, near Murphy, the county seat of Cherokes; the timber consists of poplar, oak, chestnut, etc., and will average 28,000 feet to the acre. Price, $3,500 per acre.
